May amend 19th Street overpass plans

By HARRY BARNES of the Press-Record

A review of the design plans for Granite City's downtown overpass with a view toward cutting construction costs to help meet a high bid on the project was proposed by City Council members Tuesday night.

Mayor Paul Schuler who has spearheaded the overpass project and the demanding efforts to secure financing, announced his ad hoc overpass committee will meet Tuesday, Dec. 18 in the mayor's conference room to study what steps may be taken to meet the dilemma arising from the high bid.

Coping and consumer tips—Pages 16, 17

The project will be rebid and every effort will be made to resolve financial problems in time to include the new bid in the Jan. 25 bid call by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The single bid opened Nov. 30 at Springfield totaled $6,400,504 and was submitted by Millstone Construction Co. of St. Louis.

"We are not going to lose this project," the mayor remarked, during the discussion.

Monroe Brewer, city engineer, told the Press-Record that a number of readjustments in the overpass plans may be found that will permit reductions in construction costs.

For example, he said, it may be possible to eliminate the sidewalk that skirts the edge of the bridge. The sidewalk addition to the overpass structure is an expensive part of the design, he said.

He noted there are other appearances both on the bridge and at ground-level that might aid in cutting total construction cost.

These will be included in the review of the bridge plans to be undertaken by the mayor's ad hoc committee which was appointed by Mayor Schuler at a time when the city was searching desperately for a final $1.3 million to complete its financing for the project.

It was the ad hoc committee that recommended the adoption of a city utility tax to raise the needed balance of funds, a project that finally was discarded after Granite City Steel offered to underwrite a $1.3 to $1.7 million bond issue to pick up the final phase of the construction cost.

The mayor's committee also expects to learn why only one bid was received for the overpass job; six construction companies had picked up specifications from IDOT, but only one of them submitted a bid. IDOT and city engineers expect to examine the specifications in an attempt to determine why the one bid was so high.

The overpass bid submitted last week was $1,047,504 over the city-state construction estimate of $5,353,000. The 19 percent excess bid makes it a certainty that the state will not accept the

Admit Postal boners; suggestions are invited

By BILL WINTER Editor

The Granite City Post Office added to its costs and accomplished nothing in return during the period when it was shipping all Granite City-to-Granite City mail to automated regional sorting facilities in St. Louis, officials acknowledged at yesterday's Granite City Rotary prayer breakfast.

The automated sorting was by zip code only, not by carrier routes, the breakfast gathering was told.

Now that the Post Office has resumed allowing the public to deposit mail at the office for either Granite City or out-of-town, rather than a single deposit slot, the 62040 zip code sorting is instantaneous except for occasional errors by citizens, it was brought out.

While the visiting postal officials indicated they feel some irritation at complaints voiced previously by the public and by postal employees, those complaints prompted pressure by the postmaster general, leading to the restoration of separate Granite City and out-of-town mail drops, the officials said.

The restoration applies only to the interior of the main Granite City Post Office and to mail boxes around the perimeter of that building, the Rotarians and others present were told.

Members of the audience suggested that twin deposit boxes be installed at several other locations around the city, as an added convenience and as a means of reducing gasoline usage by citizens and by the U. S. Postal Service. Non-sorted mail in neighborhood boxes is still being transported to St. Louis and back.

The no-holds-barred question and answer session brought out a wide range of complaints about former one-

Candidates ready to file

"It's too quiet," is the way one Madison County official summarizes this year's primary election preparations, particularly in the race for two of the state representative seats up for consideration.

With the official filing period for office starting next Monday, Dec. 10, most candidates or would-be candidates should have petition drives completed, or well on the way, by now, the official said, adding, "I have not heard of anyone who plans to run for state representative against the incumbents."

Will it be a "free ride" for the Democratic nomination for State Representatives Sam Wolf of Granite City and Jim McPike of Alton? "I hope so," one Wolf campaign supporter exclaimed, "wouldn't it be nice after the bitter campaigns in the past?"

Most attention in the county courthouse is focusing on two races—state's attorney and circuit judge.

Incumbent State's Attorney Nicholas G. Byron, a Democrat, is almost certain to seek re-election, courthouse sources indicate, but will face a well-organized campaign from Democrat Richard "Dick" Allen of Granite City. Others have indicated they may "throw their hats into the ring" in the Democratic race for the state's attorney's nomination, including County Board Member William R. Haine of Alton.

The circuit judge position that opened when Judge William Beatty accepted a lifetime appointment to the Federal District Court has attracted at least two candidates—Associate Judge A. A. Mateosian, of Granite City, who formerly served as a circuit judge, and Charles Chapman, who is filling the Beatty position by appointment. Both are Democrats.

Another judge race attracting considerable attention is for the Appellate

Drive for Lutheran high building now at two-thirds

A $750,000 bond drive is continuing for construction of a school building for Metro-East Lutheran High School, in Edwardsville.

Team captains and members of the high school board of directors have been working on the task in the eight churches that make up the High School Association. About two-thirds of the bond issue has been subscribed by persons from those churches.

Captains and board members and their churches are: Dave Painter and Duane Rankin, Concordia Lutheran Church, Granite City; Dan Bosse and Sue Goers, St. Paul, Wood River; Clyde Fisher and Helen Thompson, Trinity, Edwardsville.

Diane Asselmeier, St. John's, Maryville; Elmer Burstad and Alice Trampe, Good Shepherd, Collinsville; Larry Kosten and Joe Berg, Holy Cross, Collinsville; George Seiferth, St. Peters, Caseyville; and Gert Walker and Rosalia Runge, Unity, East St. Louis.

A copy of the prospectus and other literature on the bond issue can be obtained from Will Tribes, chairman of the drive, by calling 636-4627, or from any of the team captains or board members of the association churches. A high school complex of 18,000 square feet is planned on 20 acres of ground on Center Grove Road between Routes 157 and 159. It will contain classrooms, a chapel, a media center, a gymnasium, administration offices and storage space. Classes are presently held at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Wood River.

Organized in 1977, the school had a first-year enrollment of 15 students. The school now has 70 freshmen, sophomores and juniors, with a waiting list for registration for the next school year.

Norman R. Junghans will be the new principal of the Lutheran High School. He is assuming the position of former principal William H. Ebel, who accepted a call as director of admissions of Concordia College, Milwaukee.

Currently the director of effectiveness training for the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in St. Louis, Junghans formerly was principal of Zion School in Harvester, Mo., youth director and athletic director of Hope Lutheran School in St. Louis, and director of guidance before becoming principal of Lutheran High School, Los Angeles, where he served for 16 years.

A graduate of Concordia College in River Forest, Ill., he received a master's degree from Washington University in St. Louis and has done graduate work at Loyola University in Los Angeles, and doctorate work at the University of Southern California.

Currently living in St. Louis, Junghans is married and has three children.

ARREST HUSBAND

Keith M. Harris, 47, of 2440 E. 24th St., was arrested early this week on a state battery complaint signed by his wife, Mrs. Clara Harris. Mrs. Harris alleged her husband became angry in their home and tore up photographs and frames. When she tried to stop him, he allegedly struck her head and hand, knocking her down, and her head struck the edge of a coffee table. She was injured, but did not seek immediate medical treatment.

Slight gain in college's enrollment

Belleville Area College experienced a 1.6 percent increase in enrollment this fall compared to figures for fall 1978.

The increase is in the number of hours enrolled for; headcount enrollment is virtually the same as last year, according to figures released this week by Admissions Director Vincent Margerum.

The 1.6 percent was in the midterm enrollment which is used for the college's "apportionment" claim to the state.

According to Public Information Director Doris Slocum, "The money BAC receives from the state is based on these figures so, in effect, they are the only ones that make any difference."

She noted that earlier speculation had placed the college's enrollment anywhere from "a slight decrease to a six percent increase."

"Those 'guesstimates' are based on various factors that may involve anything from computer error on down, so the only truly accurate figure we can give each semester is the midterm apportionment claim," she said. "Even that figure may not be exact, since community colleges also may submit supplemental claims."

Spanish mass at St. Joseph

Our Lady of Guadalupe mass will be celebrated in Spanish at 9 a.m. Sunday at St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church, 2101 State St.

Members of a religious order of Missionaries of the Holy Family, Father Gary Nichols, M.S.F., Father John Flanagan, M.S.F., Father Jim Waser, M.S.F. and Brother Jude Trevino, M.S.F., will participate in the annual observance. Father Nichols will play the organ and Brother Trevino will direct the choir, composed of Mexican-American residents of the community, in singing selections in Spanish.

Father Flanagan will say the mass in Spanish and Mrs. Elva Ortiz will serve as lector.

The rosary in Spanish will be led by Frank Ortiz beginning at 9 a.m. and at 9:15 the traditional Mananita will serenade the Blessed Virgin of Guadalupe, a custom of Mexico.

An impressive procession will appear in authentic Mexican costumes preceding the 9:30 mass.

According to historical data a self-portrait of Our Lady of Guadalupe was imprinted on the cloak of a humble Indian in 1531, only 40 years after Columbus reached America.

She appeared to the Aztec

four times at the spot known as Tepeyac hill. She asked that a shrine be built to her there, promising that she would give an answer to the problems of all who would come to her with love and trust, and call on her for help.

The shrine stands just north of Mexico City, the central spot of the western hemisphere and at that time the capital city of the New World.

County candidate filing rules given

Miss Evelyn M. Bowles, Madison County clerk, this week announced that petition filing procedures are being adjusted to conform to State Board of Elections regulations concerning filings.

All petitions filed by persons waiting in line as of 9 a.m. on Monday, Dec. 10, the first day for filing, will be deemed filed as of 9 a.m.

Also, petitions filed by mail and received in the first mail delivery, or pick-up, on the first day, will be deemed as filed as of 9 a.m. that day.

All petitions received thereafter will be deemed as filed in the order of actual receipt.

Where two or more petitions are received simultaneously, for the same office, for the same political party, ties will be broken by means of a public drawing in the county clerk's office, to be held after the close of filing on the first day.

"Anyone having any question should contact the county clerk's office, 692-4482, Miss Bowles said."

Pontoon Road warehouses challenged

An official representing the Illinois Division of Waterways inspected construction activity along Pontoon Road at the Alton & Southern Railroad tracks Wednesday and told local residents that the property is in an area where filling is prohibited unless specific and appropriate arrangements are made not to increase the flooding hazard in the Doherty Slough area.

Mike Keith, a planner with the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission, who was asked by the Illinois Division of Waterways to investigate complaints about filling of property in the slough vicinity, said he was going to meet with M. B. Corlew & Associates to determine if the drainage requirements are being met.

City Engineer Monroe Brewer said the contractor, Leo Wolf, promised at 2 p.m. Wednesday that the firm would stop bringing in truckloads of fill to the site.

A project by L. Wolf Construction Co., which is building nine "mini-warehouses" at 2900 Pontoon Road, was discussed at Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting by Seventh Ward Alderman Modrusic, who asked whether the project would increase flooding worries in the Doherty Slough area. Modrusic said he was surprised when he learned of the project from residents of the slough area, since the city inspection department had issued a $225,000 construction permit to Wolf for the buildings without notifying Modrusic; the project is in his ward.

City Engineer Monroe Brewer defended the project, saying the development Wolf has planned for the area should have no adverse effect on drainage or the water level in the slough area.

Since most of the dirt for the project may be dredged from the slough, Brewer said, this should increase the holding capacity of the slough without increasing the water level. "I am going to call him (Wolf) and ask him not to haul in any more dirt, even though he can legally do it," the engineer added. A check by the Press-Record yesterday morning showed truckloads of dirt were being emptied on the site.

Wolf said the dirt is from the bottom of the slough and is being mixed with topsoil.

Brewer told the Press-Record he was informed by the Wolf firm that the nine mini-warehouses, occupying about one acre of ground, may be the beginning of an overall project which could include apartment buildings in the future.

"The overall project calls for enlarging the storage area of the slough and creating a lake with a greater holding capacity than the amount of water the project will offset," Brewer said. He commented that the drainage plan is part of the overall development and is not tied directly to the warehouses, adding, "There's only one acre involved now. It can't create too much of a problem."

He said the building permit was issued by the city because the area already was zoned properly for the development and there was no legal reason to deny the permit. "He would just take us to court and get the permit anyway," the engineer said.

Brewer disagreed with the project is within a "moratorium" area where building is prohibited by a county resolution.

"As far as I have been able to tell, this area is outside of the moratorium area," Brewer said.

He said city and county maps he has obtained, and even a map by the U. S. Corps of Engineers, show the property now being developed—which is just west of the Alton & Southern Railroad tracks—is excluded from the moratorium area.

Mrs. Helen Hawkins, a resident of the slough area, said she is concerned about runoff water from the property, since it is adjacent to the slough pump station and she thinks water which runs north from the property will run directly into the slough, thus raising the water level.

"Mr. Brewer says they plan to fill the property to 420 feet above mean sea level. We on Angela Drive are at 411 and 412 feet and Lynch Avenue is at 418 feet. It is inevitable what will happen the first heavy rain," Mrs. Hawkins contended.

Brewer responded, "Once you reach the top of the water table, you can build it up 25 feet, or 50 feet, and still not change the water retention."

Mrs. Hawkins contended M. B. Corlew & Associates engineered the Wolf project, as well as other recent developments in the slough area and accused the Corlew firm of ignoring its own advice.

She displayed a copy of a January 1972 letter she received from Corlew which stated, "We hope that no future development takes place in this area without substantial area drainage provisions being made."

Mrs. Hawkins also contended problems are worse now than in 1972, since the water table is much higher and building continues.

The Illinois Division of Waterways and Madison County Zoning Administrator Paul Hawkins has promised her they will look into current development activity in the slough area, she said.

Wolf told the Press-Record yesterday afternoon that the dirt the trucks are dumping on the property is primarily dirt from the slough, where he is creating a lake next to the pump station; dirt previously hauled in Tuesday was needed to form a "base" for the buildings, so they would not sink.

He said he is meeting all of the requirements of building in a flood hazard area, including the requirement that the buildings be one foot higher than estimated flood level.

"Anything I build, I build right, and I have done that for 25 or 30 years. I had the same fight in 1962 when I built the apartments there. But the apartments did not add to the problems for those people out there. They are an asset," Wolf said.

"Dredging of a lake is already in progress at the back (north end) of the property and two trucks are bringing the dirt from the slough, mixed with topsoil, from the back to the front. That is what you see from Pontoon Road."

He emphasized the lake will hold more water than the runoff from the property will be, and that he is meeting all requirements of building in a flood hazard area, so the project will not affect the city's eligibility for the national flood insurance program.

GC air board meets Dec. 11

A review of applications for federal and state grants will be among items discussed during the regular meeting of the Granite City Air Pollution Control Board at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 2301 Adams St. In addition to reviewing the initial draft of the proposed 1980-81 fiscal year grant request, the board will study an application for a new supplemental grant.

Routine business on the agenda includes reviews of general surveillance, monthly activities, air sampling and training courses taken by the staff.

October steel output up, downtrend in November

Domestic raw steel production increased slightly in October, a new American Iron and Steel Institute report shows. Production was 10,810,000 net tons, compared with September's total of 10,541,000 tons. In October 1978, production was 12,105,000 tons.

The capacity utilization rate was up as well, from September's 82.8 percent to 84.4 percent.

The year-to-date figure, through October, was 89.1 percent. This included a stronger first half, in which the capacity utilization rose to over 90 percent.

However, weekly data compiled by the AISI for November shows raw steel production has declined to the lowest level since the winter of 1977-78.

Of the raw steel produced in October, 6,552,000 tons came from basic oxygen furnaces, 2,866,000 tons from electric furnaces, and 1,392,000 from open hearth furnaces.

All three categories were up slightly from September, when the totals were 6,460,000 tons from BOFs, 2,637,000 tons from electric furnaces, and 1,445,000 tons from open hearth furnaces.

Through the first ten months of this year, BOF output has totaled 71,051,000 tons, electric furnace output 28,375,000 tons, and open hearth output 16,483,000 tons.

Symphony to stress innovation, excellence

A consistent offering of the world's best soloists and guest conductors — and a variety of innovative musical programs and major recording projects as well as appearances by visiting orchestras — are being planned by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra as it moves into the 1980s, it was announced at the 81st annual meeting of the St. Louis Symphony Society at Powell Symphony Hall during the weekend.

"We plan to make the Symphony the orchestra of the '80s," said Music Director Leonard Slatkin. "I intend to spend considerably more time here with the orchestra next year."

"As we approach the next decade, I hope to lead the St. Louis Symphony into a new era of musical excellence," said Slatkin, who has just returned from extensive guest conducting appearances throughout Europe.

He conducted his first subscription concert of the 100th anniversary season this weekend, with violinist Isaac Stern as guest soloist.

Zane Barnes, president of Southwestern Bell, said the orchestra has received a $50,000 grant from the Bell System to help underwrite a touring program during the orchestra's centennial.

Barnes then presented a commissioned painting of the orchestra and Slatkin by Leroy Neiman to the Society. Neiman is well known for colorful portrait paintings of sports personalities as well as special commissions for the Metropolitan Opera and the Paris Opera.

"The artwork will be featured on the cover of the 1980 St. Louis Metropolitan telephone directory," said Barnes, "recognizing the 100th anniversary of the nation's second oldest symphony orchestra."

Symphony Board President W. L. Hadley Griffin commented on plans to improve accessibility to Powell Hall. The architectural firm of Helmut, Obata & Kassabaum, in conjunction with Newmark, will begin work soon to expand parking and improve pedestrian routes surrounding the hall.

Plans include paving and grading existing parking and developing additional parking facilities for joint use of the adjacent businesses and institutions; creation of a convenient pedestrian drop-off area; and landscaping and lighting to enhance the arrival of concertgoers. The project is scheduled for completion next fall.

Major accomplishments by the Society during the fiscal year which ended Aug. 31, 1979, included the orchestra's successful tour to Athens, its first performance outside the United States; continued progress in the Fund for a Second Century; and three Grammy nominations for the orchestra's recordings of Alexander Nevsky and the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 1, both conducted by Slatkin.

Griffin cited recent review in Hi-Fi Stereo Review of the Nevsky recording which said, "The St. Louis Symphony plays as if it were one of America's top five orchestras."

David J. Hyslop, Symphony executive director, commented on the recording of "The Works of George Gershwin" which were distributed in China. When Mayor James H. Cannon led a delegation to visit Nanjing (Nanking), St. Louis' latest and sixth sister city.

"The recording was played over Nanjing's major radio station and copies were given to representatives from Shanghai and Peking," said Hyslop.

"Since so much publicity followed the St. Louis Delegation, it can be modestly said that the St. Louis Symphony, George Gershwin, and Leonard Slatkin are now well known to the Chinese people."

Hyslop announced that Slatkin has been named to the Music Advisory Panel of the National Endowment for the Arts. The panel regularly reviews grant requests from musical institutions nationwide.

The Symphony Society is the parent organization of the orchestra and is made up of those who have contributed a minimum of $50 during its fiscal year.

The Society's purpose is to maintain and perfect an orchestra of the highest possible artistic quality and to present concerts to a maximum number of people.

Class on Chinese history

Dr. Kenneth Luke, of the Belleville Area College faculty, will be teaching a course in Chinese history this spring on the main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road. He has traveled to 60 foreign countries and has been to the Orient on three different occasions.

His study and expertise on the Orient will enable him to lecture on China's early history, including the geographic makeup of China; China's culture and religions; the strong influence of philosophers such as Confucius, Mencius and Lao-Tzu (Taoism); the dynasties that ruled China; China's relationship with European powers and the U.S.; Chinese-Russian relations; and Sun Yat-sen and Chiang Kai-shek.

Emphasis will be placed on China from World War I to the present, including China's move into Communism and the Mao takeover.

Registration for all courses to be taught on the main campus is being held each Monday through Thursday from 9 to 8 p.m. and each Friday from 9 to 9:30 p.m.

There will be no registration from Dec. 17 through Jan. 1. Classes will begin Jan. 12.

The recording was played over Nanjing's major radio station and copies were given to representatives from Shanghai and Peking, said Hyslop.

Food stamp financial allotments to increase

Acting Public Aid Director Jeffrey C. Miller is reminding Illinoisans that food stamp allotments will be increased Jan. 1, 1980, for most households participating in the food stamp program. The adjustment reflects rising food prices. The monthly income and coupon allotment amounts are based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture Thrift Food Plan. The amount of the increase will be dependent on the size and income of the household.

Household size, maximum monthly income and maximum coupon allotment are as follows:

One, $306 and $63.
Two, $403 and $115.
Three, $500 and $165.
Four, $596 and $209.
Five, $693 and $248.
Six, $790 and $296.
Seven, $886 and $329.
Eight, $983 and $376.
Households with more than eight members will receive a $47 allotment adjustment and a $97 income adjustment for each person added.

In addition to the changes in coupon allotment levels, the standard deduction for all households will be increased to $75. Miller also announced a new federal food stamp rule going into effect Jan. 1 that will make certain elderly and disabled food stamp users eligible for increased benefits.

Under the new rule, food stamp users will be allowed a monthly deduction for non-reimbursable verified medical expenses that exceed $35 incurred by persons who are 60 or over; or who receive disability benefits under Title II of the Social Security Act; or who receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.

In addition, households with such elderly or disabled persons can claim the full amount of their shelter costs exceeding 50 percent of their income after all other deductions," Miller said.

"These additional deductions will have the effect of raising their food stamp benefits." In making the announcement, Miller noted that elderly and disabled who are already using food stamps will need to request the increased benefit from their local public aid office. Additional information about the food stamp program is available at all public aid offices or by calling the toll-free food stamp hotline: 800-972-4608.

SGT. OTTO WINS AGAIN. The 1968 Volkswagen won a first-place trophy in the Foreign Custom Division at the auto show in St. Louis Sunday. The official police car, created by Chief of Police Donald L. Bridick, won a first-place trophy in an International Auto Show in 1977. Explorers from Post 10-4, sponsored by the Madison Police Unit 110, use the car frequently with the police, to stress safety in the elementary schools. Explorers from the left are: Ronald Grzywacz, John Bargiel, with the 1979 trophy, and John Lake. Grzywacz and Bargiel are co-chairmen of the 10-4 Sgt. Otto committee.

FREQUENT WINNER. Andrew Economy, Madison, an auto show enthusiast, stands by his 1926 Model-T four-door sedan and the first place trophy he won during the weekend.

Many local winners at custom auto show

The Quad-City area was well represented at the Custom Auto and Van Show held over the weekend in St. Louis Kiel Auditorium as several local entries won top honors.

The show attracted 285 custom vehicle owners from the entire mid-west.

John Clonko, in the Radical Custom Division, earned first place with his 1974 Trans Am.

The Madison Fire Department entered their 1976 Pacer in the Compact Conservative Division and took a first place trophy.

The famous Sgt. Otto was entered by Explorer Post 10-4 and won first place in the Foreign-Custom Division.

The 1968 customized Volkswagen has been used by the Madison police and members of the Explorer Post 10-4 for several years to teach good safety habits to young children.

One auto show official commented how popular Sgt. Otto was among show goers, particularly the younger ones.

Chief of Police Donald Bridick was the creator of Sgt. Otto and was assisted by the Explorers and several area merchants in the creation.

Explorers Ronald Grzywacz and John Bargiel are co-chairmen of the Sgt. Otto committee for Post 10-4.

The Explorers entered Sgt. Otto in an International Auto Show in 1977 and won a first place trophy.

Andrew Economy, partner in Lee and Andy's Auto

Repair, in Madison, is no stranger to the winners' circle of auto shows. Entering his 1926 Model-T four door sedan in the Street Rod Sedan-Early Division, he won first place.

Economy, president of the Madison Fire Department, designed and created the award winning 1976 Pacer for the fire department.

He also assisted Chief Bridick and the explorers several years ago in the original customizing of the Volkswagen.

LICENSE FEES Stickers better be red after Dec. 31

By CARLY CARSTENS

SPRINGFIELD — Many Illinois car owners are driving around with expired license plates.

Karin Gustafson, assistant director of the vehicle service division in the office of the secretary of state, estimates 100,000 persons a month are failing to buy the red stickers that indicate they have paid their license fees for the next several months.

Technically, car owners who have failed to buy red stickers are driving with invalid vehicle registrations, Gustafson said.

So far, police have issued few tickets to drivers in violation of the law. But after Dec. 31, "everyone's sticker better be red," she said.

When the shift to multi-year license plates began Mrs. Jean Peters, the secretary of state set up a schedule that will stagger license plate sales over several months.

The new schedule avoids expiration dates requiring car owners to change plates in severe winter weather.

Venice planning food baskets

The Venice City Council Tuesday evening decided that it will continue the practice of giving food baskets to Venice families during the holiday season.

Mayor Tyrone Echols said, "I think the Christmas basket money may be possible as the fire department has indicated it will help."

"I figure the baskets will cost about $6,000 which I think is a conservative figure. The city gave out 178 baskets in 1978."

Alderman Hank A. Svezia asked, "Can we really afford this?"

Mayor Echols replied, "You can't afford me. We're sitting here without our eighth alderman, which definitely saves money."

Alderman Victor Valentine Sr. said, "We need to develop some strict guidelines on these food baskets."

The first group of plates to expire in 1980 will be in March.

"We have a lot of young people laid off and in need. It's not just the elderly that need some help with all the area plant layoffs."

"Since it is the council's decision to continue you know your wards and the needs of the people in them."

"We'll use 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 11, as the cutoff date."

"It is important that when you talk to the people they know they can't receive a food basket from us and the Salvation Army also."

"It's one basket per family and the city and Salvation Army compare list to avoid duplication. Unfortunately we do have some people try to get on both lists," Mayor Echols said.

It was noted that persons to receive food baskets will be from the aldermen's lists and no request for food baskets at the city hall will be accepted.

Faces 3 charges

Andy Axson, 2414 Arlington Drive, was charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and battery after a disturbance at the home of his former wife at 2301 Nameeki Road, lot 9, at 2:05 a.m. Tuesday. Police were told their marriage dissolution became final that day.

A neighbor reported hearing yelling in Mrs. Kathy Axson's mobile home and when police arrived, her former husband allegedly blocked the doorway and demanded to see a search warrant.

Mrs. Axson allegedly was crying in a corner, alleged Axson had beat her and asked them to take him from the home.

Police alleged Axson yelled at her to be quiet and threatened her. He then allegedly threatened three officers and threw the living room couch across the room several times.

Officers said they used force to handcuff him and place him in a squad car. He was released after posting $235 cash bond.

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) semi-sweet real chocolate morsels
1 1/2 cups unsifted flour
2 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup solid vegetable shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup light corn syrup

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Melt over hot (not boiling) water, semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Remove from heat and set aside. In small bowl, combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine shortening, sugar and egg beat until creamy. Mix in corn syrup and melted chocolate. Gradually blend in flour mixture. Shape dough into balls using about 1/4 cup dough for each. Roll in sugar. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 350 degrees F for 20 to 22 minutes. Makes ten 4 1/2-inch cookies.

Savory lobster tails

CLIP 'N' COOK
Copley News Service

2 4-oz. frozen rock lobster tails
2 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. teriyaki sauce
2 tbsps. dry sherry

Thaw tails under running cold water for a few minutes. With kitchen scissors cut through hard shell down middle of each and also through thin fin end of tail. With sharp knife, cut through flesh down middle of each, but not through soft underside membrane. Bend tails open to flatten. Wrap foil over end of each tail. Melt butter and stir in teriyaki sauce and sherry. Reserve. Broil tails, shell side up, in a single layer in a small foil-lined baking pan about 4 inches from high heat for 5 minutes. Turn flesh side up; cup foil close to tails and pour reserved sauce over them and into foil cup. Continue broiling until opaque through—about 5 minutes more. Serve tails, and sauce poured out of cupped foil, with rice. Makes 1 serving.

After just two days of accepting applications for energy assistance for this winter, the Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission exhausted the $229,921 allocation and halted the program.

No more applications are to be taken unless more federal funds become available. It was decided Monday evening.

Those submitting their names by telephone will be placed on an informal list. Hundreds of families applied for wintertime fuel aid of up to $300.

DRIVE LUNCHEON

At tomorrow's 11:45 a.m. Tri-Cities Area United Way report luncheon at the YMCA auditorium, a choral group from the Madison County Urban League will entertain.

PARK CREATED

On May 11, 1910, Congress created Glacier National Park.

Court, where two recent resignations have left posts up for election.

Circuit Judge Moses W. Harrison II is serving on the Appellate Court by appointment to the post vacated by the resignation of Judge George Moran Sr. of Granite City and Harrison is expected to seek election to that post.

Opposition for that seat from any Madison County Democrat is doubtful, since Harrison is well-liked and has strong local support.

However, Harrison has not "burned his bridges" on the possibility of running for re-election to his circuit court position, possibly while running for the Appellate Court.

Harrison has told friends he believes he can legally run for both positions at the same time.

Rumors persist that if Harrison is elected to the Appellate Court, the circuit judges of the Third Judicial Circuit (Madison and Bond counties) will recommend that Associate Judge Philip J. Rarick be appointed to fill Harrison's circuit judge post, in effect keeping it "out of the hands of the voters" in 1980.

While Harrison may have a relatively easy time winning the Appellate Court position that Moran vacated, a lively race is expected for the Appellate Court post from which Justice Edward E. Eberspacher resigned last year.

Justice Dorothy Spohlmer currently is filling the vacancy on appointment by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Four attorneys have indicated they may seek Justice Eberspacher's seat, including Chief Circuit Judge Horace Calvo of Granite City, who already has announced his candidacy.

Others being mentioned are Paul Waller of Belleville, Circuit Judge Ron Niemann of Salem and East St. Louis School Board Member Robert Mays, a former East St. Louis city clerk.

Dorothy Spohlmer also has the option of seeking election to that post, which she now holds by appointment.

Circuit Clerk Willard V. "Butch" Portell is expected to seek the Democratic nod to continue in his office, despite continuing differences with the party philosophy. His only opponent thus far is David A. Knobloch of Wood River, a court bailiff in the Third Judicial Circuit.

Likely to seek re-election to their posts are Madison County Coroner Mrs. Dallas Burke of Alton and Recorder of Deeds Ronald P. Lucas of Maryville.

In addition to the incumbent, the recorder of deeds race is expected to attract former State Rep. Joe E. Lucco.

Madison County Republicans have indicated they are attempting to fill every spot on the ballot in the 1980 general election, but the number of Republican battles in the March primary election is expected to be limited or non-existent.

The gathering was told that trains carrying mail have dwindled from 10,000 to six, and that many airline flights no longer have enough available space to carry mail promptly, leading to almost total reliance on trucks.

Post office staffs vary from 30,000 in New York City to one person working 14 hours a week at Mitchell, it was related.

Officials said they have reduced the Granite City Post Office staff by 12 persons, including four carriers, and have tried to avoid losses in service and efficiency. When told that mail formerly delivered to businesses in the morning now often fails to arrive until the afternoon, they agreed to investigate.

Also investigated will be assertions that at many neighborhood mail boxes, late afternoon pickups are made before the designated times, thwarting many persons seeking to have their mail dispatched that day.

ROAD PLAN

Foreign salt to ease the way

By JOAN MURARO

SPRINGFIELD — When the snow is blowing and the roads are icing, Illinois motorists probably won't really care, but some of them will be driving over roads being kept clear by some pretty exotic salt.

Ed Kehl, chief of the Bureau of Maintenance for the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) said salt costs which have tripled and now reach $21 to $35 a ton make it feasible to import it from longer distances.

As a result, among the 300,000 tons the department anticipates will be used on Illinois roads this winter will be salt coming from Bermuda, and even some coming all the way from Chile. Total cost for the winter's supply is expected to be about $6 million.

The Bermuda salt, Kehl said, is a solar product, dried naturally by the warm and abundant Bermuda sunshine — which won't make the snow in Illinois any less messy but does make the salt abundantly available and less expensive.

After the experiences of the last two winters Kehl, like just about everyone else, is hoping the law of averages will be enforced and the winter will be a bit more moderate.

But just in case, IDOT is trying to have more salt stockpiled and ready for use, ahead of need, this year than in the past.

"We hope," Kehl says, "to have a bigger supply on hand by mid-November than we had last year."

By the end of November, IDOT expects to have some 128,000 tons on hand, with additional supplies readily available, mostly at large terminals around the state.

While most Illinois counties have successfully called for bids and are already receiving deliveries of highway salt, Kehl said, one group of key counties was unable, after two bid calls, to find a supplier. The department was able to purchase 4,100 tons already available within the state for those six counties, and "20 railroad cars are now running back and forth between Illinois and Hutchinson, Kan., delivering more salt" for them, Kehl said. In all, the counties — Vermilion, Champaign, Macon, Shelby, Fayette and Effingham — are expected to split up about 12,000 tons among them.

Most of the salt, once delivered, is stored in buildings especially designed for salt storage, Kehl said, and where it is necessary to store it outdoors, the department tries to be sure it is kept under covers. Storage sites differ among counties, depending on population, the road network and other factors, he said, with 22 locations in Cook County, and only one permanent location in Kane. Will County has four permanent locations, he said, while Springfield alone has two and funds have been appropriated to establish another one further to the east of Springfield on I-72. That site, he said, will not be available for use this winter.

Bidding for salt supplies, Kehl said, calls for a complex formula in which the state estimated 100 percent of its demand, and bidders must then guarantee to furnish 120 percent of that amount, while the state guarantees to buy at least 70 percent of the estimated amount.

Salt for Chicago's streets is hauled from Cleveland by lake shipping, while southern Illinois gets its salt chiefly from Louisiana.

Togetherness NAACP theme

"Togetherness—we can do it" was the theme of the fourth annual award tea of the Madison Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, held Sunday in Venice.

The affair was attended by approximately 150 persons. In her opening remarks Mrs. Barbara Harrell, vice-president, said, "Various parts of metal will sink if by themselves."

"Put these various parts together to make a ship and it will float."

"Togetherness can do it. When a minority is right, one day it will become the majority. I want to welcome everyone of you here tonight and thank you all for your support," she said.

W. E. Dennis, a teacher at Madison junior high school, was the master-of-ceremonies.

Included on the program was a solo by Reggie Fields, who also played the piano. The Rev. Henry Allan, pastor of the New Salem Baptist Church sang.

Ginger Booker, age 10, daughter of Mrs. Bobbie J. Booker, held the audience as she sang two solos.

Henry Helrich, president of OATH Inc., accepted a plaque awarded by the NAACP to the organization for its work with handicapped persons in the area.

Mick Strange, assistant to the editor of the Granite City Press-Record, was presented a plaque for his unbiased coverage of news in the Madison-Venice area.

Others honored with awards included: Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols, Marion Guest, Jerri Stroude, Rex Carr, and Tim O'Neal.

Mayor Echols called on the residents of Venice to answer all questions by Venetians honestly and completely. He noted that much of the federal funds awarded a city is based on information given a census taker.

The Rev. Jerome Jackson, featured speaker, traced the accomplishments of black people through history in a struggle for equality.

"The march for equality has moved slowly but victoriously and will continue until we reach our goal," he said.

Assisting with the program were several members of the newly formed youth branch of the NAACP.

The program chairlady was Mrs. Helen King.

Vice-president Harrell issued an invitation for those who wished to join the organization.

EPILEPSY COUNCIL TO MEET DEC. 12

The Consumer Council of the Southwestern Illinois Epilepsy Association will hold its December meeting at the Southern Illinois Bank in Fairview Heights on Wednesday, Dec. 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Pam Ebert, a dietetic intern from St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville. She will speak on nutrition. The meeting is open to individuals who have epilepsy, or to those who have a family member or friend with epilepsy.

YOUNG SOLOIST. Ginger Booker, 10, daughter of Mrs. Bobbie J. Booker, of Madison, received a standing ovation after singing a solo at the NAACP tea. She is a fifth-grader at the St. Mary-St. Mark School. Her mother is a teacher's aide at the Harris elementary school in Madison.

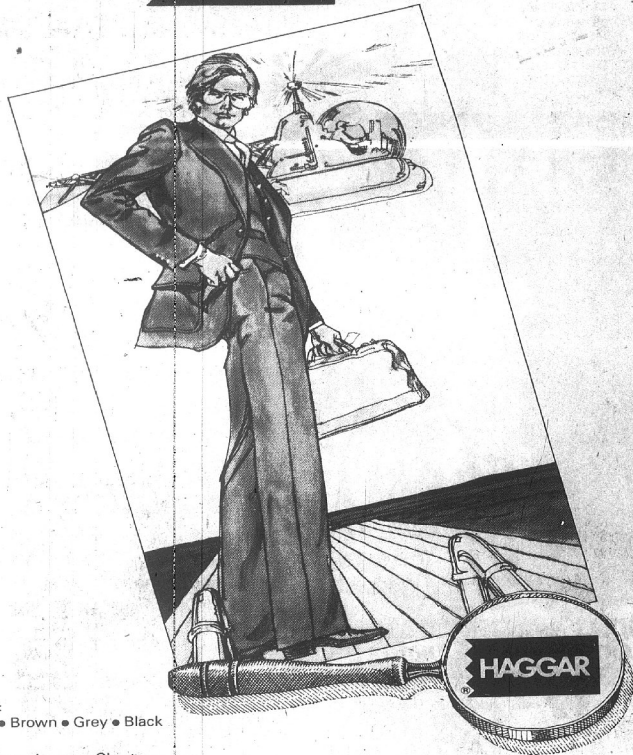

VENICE MAYOR HONORED. Tyrone Echols, right, mayor of Venice, is honored this week at the fourth annual tea of the Madison Branch of the NAACP. Rev. John Henry Williams, left, makes the presentation. Echols became the first black mayor of Venice on April 17. The tea was attended by approximately 150 persons.

bid, even if the city were to provide the difference in cost, Brewer said.

"Customarily the state will accept bids only if they are within 5 percent of the estimate."

The only factor that could result in an upward revision of the estimate would be an extensive variation in the specifications, he noted.

The overpass project has been subject to a variety of cost estimates since the city began actual planning to build the span. From these estimates it also easily becomes apparent the extent inflation has played in the development of the bridge program.

When the city first began studying plans for building the overpass, an estimated cost of $4,900,000 was set on a four-lane highway bridge in July 1975. Brewer notes that it was that particular cost estimate that convinced the city to accept 19th Street because of the most convenient and less costly route.

More detailed planning and traffic studies, however, changed the picture by February 1976, when the estimate was revised upward to $5.4 million.

Changing aspects of the overpass planning caused several different estimates within the next few years. Estimated construction cost was listed at $5.2 million in December 1976 and dropped to $5 million in March 1977. By May 1977, the estimated cost had risen to $5.4 million.

Brewer noted these estimates were not based on design plans, but only on overall computations as to requirements of building the span under a series of changing plans.

Design planning by M.W. Architects & Engineers began in September. When completed, the estimate had risen to $7,600,000.

The city meanwhile had raised available funds but it was obvious the amount of funds available would not meet this cost.

As a result, the city revised its planning again and reduced the bridge design to two lanes rather than a four lane highway, resulting in a cut to the $5.3 million estimate on which the bid call eventually was based.

build a gate house at First and D streets.

Also, separate all utilities serving the industrial park from the utilities serving the Depot; move the 48,000 tons of metals and 600,000 tons of bauxite now on the 276-acre site to a nearby Depot area; and build a fence around the new location of the bauxite and metals.

Spearman commented, "When it has been decided which public agency will purchase the property, a more detailed and comprehensive offer to purchase will be prepared. Upon receipt by the GSA of the offer, together with an earnest money deposit for not less than ten percent of the purchase price, the offer will be sent to the Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee and the Government Operations Committee of the House of Representatives for their review."

"Conveyance of title will be made upon satisfactory completion by the purchaser of the services described above. The purchaser might also be asked to guarantee performance. The balance of the purchase price is payable at closing."

Revocation of J&J license is appealed

An order by Mayor Paul Schuler revoking the liquor license of the J & J Liquor Store, 3112 Maryville Road, on charges of selling liquor to minors, has been appealed to the Illinois State Liquor Control Commission.

Notice of the appeal was given City Council members Tuesday night by Jack P. Wallanda, executive director of the state agency, who said the store would be permitted to operate during the time of the appeal.

Wallanda said a hearing has been set in Springfield, June 30 at 10 a.m. to hear the case.

The appeal was filed in behalf of Mr. Sarah Stephens, owner of the store who denied during local hearings on the charges that she or any of her clerks knowingly sold liquor to minors.

Store clerks, Mrs. Stephens' husband, Joe Stephens and several police officers were called to testify at a local hearing in the city hall here before the mayor ordered the revocation of the license.

TEEN IS ARRESTED

Larry L. Mouser, 19, of 2807 Emree St., was arrested in the 2400 block of Rock Road at 2:50 a.m. today and was charged with criminal damage to property. Police alleged he had a crowbar hidden in his trousers and under his coat when he was arrested. A witness alleged the crowbar was used to try and break into the auto of Everett Kuehn, 2401 Rock Road. The chrome and rubber molding around the driver's window were damaged.

Logsdon infant is stillborn

Timothy Wayne Logsdon, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne (Marilyn) Logsdon, 37 Carnation, Collinsville, was stillborn at 4:10 p.m. Monday at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Other survivors include grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Corene) Logsdon, Coffeen, Ill., and Mrs. Fannie Hopwood, Fillmore, Ill.; and great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude (Janie) Johnson, Leitchfield, Ky. Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Burglary today

Items valued at more than $500 were stolen from the truck and garage of Lloyd Johnson, 4129 Braden Ave., between 2:30 and 4:30 a.m. today.

A vent window of the truck, parked in the driveway, was forced open and an $80 CB radio and a garage door opener were taken.

Entry to the garage was gained by breaking a window and a $200 CB base station, tools, a jack, auto testing equipment and a burglar alarm were taken, Johnson said.

Charged in shooting

Larry Tinker, 23, of 2906 Indiana Ave., was charged yesterday in connection with the shooting of Sarki Nighohossian, 38, of 1719 Chestnut St., Saturday morning in Nighohossian's home.

Informational documents issued by the Madison County state's attorney's office Wednesday charge Tinker with armed violence and two counts of aggravated battery and set his bond at $50,000.

Tinker remains in St. Elizabeth Medical Center under a police hold order, recuperating from cut and stab wounds he allegedly said were self-inflicted.

Nighohossian was released from the medical center yesterday, recovering from bullet wounds to his left arm and shoulder. Authorities said he had been shot at least three times after a dice game.

Nighohossian alleged he and Tinker had been playing dice at a tavern in Lincoln Place (not Sammy's Tavern, which is owned by Nighohossians), and the game continued at Nighohossian's home.

Tinker allegedly lost $200 in the game, but Nighohossian offered to settle the debt for $40, police were told.

It is alleged Tinker got a 9 millimeter gun, walked to Nighohossian's bedroom and shot him repeatedly. Tinker allegedly became upset and threatened to kill himself before leaving the house.

At 7:50 a.m. Saturday, Madison County sheriff's deputies found Tinker in his car on the levee one quarter of a mile south of the Chain of Rocks Canal Bridge, bleeding from his chest and wrist. He was taken by a Granite City ambulance to the medical center, where he was admitted.

OKAY TUITION PLAN

The Illinois Higher Education Board unanimously approved on Tuesday a plan giving university governing boards, rather than the legislature, authority to set public college tuition rates. The proposal, which still needs General Assembly approval to take effect, would tie tuition to the inflation rate.

During the service both adults and children will bring handmade ornaments in white and metallic gold to the site of the tree with a response and explanation as to its relation as a religious emblem.

There will be a live nativity scene with special music and carols throughout the program, Rev. Rutledge added.

The minister said Sunday School classes will convene at 9:30 a.m.

Benefit marathon for swimmers and joggers at YMCA

The Tri-City Area YMCA announced today that it will hold the second annual "Swogathon" on Dec. 21, 22, 23.

This combination swim-jogathon is a year-end fund raiser and proceeds will be used to sponsor youth programs in 1980.

Adult and youth members of the YMCA participating in the special event will be contacting area residents and businesses and asking them for pledges per lap completed.

Pledges of two cents, ten cents, 20 cents, 50 cents or $1 or more may be made for each lap.

After soliciting pledges, participants then will either swim or jog a number of laps at the "Y." All sponsors are being encouraged to cheer their participants on.

South Band yule concert tonight

The Granite City High School South Band will present a concert at 8 o'clock tonight in Memorial Auditorium, according to Joseph Owens, band director.

The concert band has 70 members and they will perform a variety of musical numbers including four Christmas selections.

Selections for the evening musical will include "Americans We March" by Henry Fillmore, "Overture to The Messiah" by George F. Handel, "Ballet Egyptian" by A. Luigini, "Chant and Jubilo" by W. Francis McBeth, "Yuletide Overture" by Phillip Lang and "Toy Shop" by Carleton Colby.

Narrator will be Julie Grider, a student. Also to be featured, will be "Sleigh Ride," by Leroy Anderson, and "El Capitan March" by John Philip Sousa.

Introductory remarks will be made by Band Letterman President Susan Seilheimer and a presentation will be made to Bernard Miller, past president, in appreciation of his work with the organization.

GARAGE IS LOOTED

A set of acetylene tanks, gauges and torches worth $400 were stolen from the garage of Leonard Zeotti, 4130 Braden Ave., between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday. Entry was believed gained through a door which had been left unlocked. An inventory will be conducted to determine if anything else was taken.

Beware of Christmas burglars

Christmas is the time of year for sharing love and giving gifts, but it is also the time of year when business and residential burglaries increase.

"Since most burglaries are committed by amateurs and opportunists who concentrate on the unprotected, you can help minimize the temptations," Illinois State Police District Commander Albert J. Bertagnoli said this week.

"While shopping, park in lighted parking areas and lock your car doors. When you enter a store, make your purchase as quickly as reasonable.

"There is nothing wrong with browsing, but sales people must always be on guard for the dishonest customer. Help them, and if you see something suspicious, report it to a salesperson or the manager.

"The honest customers should be concerned, because they are the ones footing the bill for thieves. "When you leave one store to drive to another, put your packages in the trunk first. Don't wait till you get to the other store to move your packages; you never know who will see you.

"Why drive around town with doors unlocked? Especially at this time of year, when a car is loaded with packages, don't let yourself be a victim of an opportunist.

"To protect your home, increase the time needed to gain entry by installing adequate locks, alarms and other devices that will delay or deter the burglar.

"Keep night lights on and, above all, be a good neighbor. The buddy system is one way crimes could be lessened or prevented.

"Neighbors should watch out for one another," Captain Bertagnoli urged. "If a stranger starts investigating the house next to you or across the street, call the police."

SERVE 2 WARRANTS

Jeffrey S. Stacey, 19, of 4033 Breckenridge Lane, Pontoon Beach, and Gray Allen Huniak, 21, of 4136 Rode Ave., were arrested at their homes Tuesday afternoon on warrants alleging unlawful possession of marijuana. It is alleged police found marijuana in their auto Sept. 11 in the Burger King parking lot, and sought the warrants after laboratory tests confirmed the substance was marijuana.

DRIVER IS ARRESTED
James L. Farris, 55, of Rural Route One, Box 13486, Granite City, was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and with leaving the scene of an accident when he was arrested in his car on the parking lot of the Little Dover Inn on Missouri Avenue at 8:55 p.m. Tuesday. Frank Butch, 3128 Carleton Ave., alleged he was driving south on Missouri Avenue at West 23rd Street when Farris' northbound auto crossed the center line, sideswiped his car and then continued north to where police found the car and arrested Farris. He was released on $100 cash bond and his driver's license.

Cairns, Manda in new posts

Promotion of Dr. John G. Manda to the position of vice president—environmental control has been announced by James V. Stack, president of the Granite City Steel Division of National Steel Corporation. The promotion became effective Dec. 1.

Dr. Manda replaces Dr. Donald F. Cairns, who has left Granite City Steel to form a new National Steel Corp. unit called National Engineers and Associates.

This new company will have its headquarters in the St. Louis area—at 7777 Bonhomme Ave., Clayton—and will market coke-oven emission-control equipment. Many of the emission control techniques were perfected at Granite City Steel by members of the environmental control staff.

Granite City Steel is the only steelmaker in the St. Louis metropolitan area. It is one of four steelmaking divisions of National Steel.

Dr. Manda has been with Granite City Steel since June 1971, when he began as assistant manager—environmental quality control. He later served as manager—environmental quality and as director—environmental quality control, his most recent position.

A graduate of Washington University, he received his bachelor's degrees in mechanical engineering and engineering physics in 1960. He has a masters degree from that institution in mechanical engineering (1966), and earned a doctor of science degree there in 1972.

Dr. Manda also has taught in the mechanical engineering department at Washington U. intermittently over the 20 years prior to this year.

Dr. Cairns was associated with Granite City Steel for many years and pioneered in development and implementation of a wide variety of pollution control programs.

Initial chairman of the Southwest Illinois Industrial Association when it was formed by the merger of the Alton District Manufacturers' Association and the Manufacturers' Association of the Tri-Cities, he again became its chairman for 1979, having been elected in January of this year.

Dr. Cairns' activities with the SIITA have focused on leading the group in taking a public stand on many issues, developing greater rapport with lawmakers as well as citizens in general, and encouraging other firms to become a part of the SIITA.

He has spearheaded several multimillion-dollar projects aimed at curbing water and air pollution, and has helped Granite City Steel and National Steel develop mechanical innovations where there was no technology available to achieve improved environmental quality.

MADISON CONCERT The Madison High School Concert Band will present the first concert of the school year at 8 p.m. today in the school auditorium. The band is under the direction of William F. Ledbetter.

Andy Matoesian of Granite City, who is currently serving as an associate judge for the Third Judicial Circuit, composed of Madison and Bond counties, has announced his candidacy for the office of circuit judge.

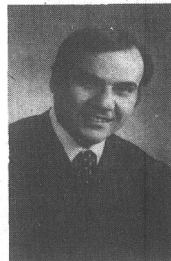

A circuit judge vacancy was created by the appointment of William L. Beatty of Granite City as a United States District Judge.

Matoesian will run in the Democratic primary on March 18, 1980. Judge Matoesian, 42 years old, was born and raised in Granite City, where he now resides with his wife and two children.

His wife, Julie, is a school teacher in Granite City and his daughter, Jane, who graduated first in her class at Granite City High School South, is now a student at Notre Dame University.

His other daughter, Georgia, is now a student at Granite City High School North. Upon graduation from Granite City High School, Judge Matoesian was employed at the Commonwealth plant, Granite City, where he worked as a laborer and foundry worker.

He says he always knew that he wanted to obtain a higher education and that, due to the cost of an education, he felt a trade of some kind would help him make financial ends meet.

ANDY MATOESIAN

Matoesian then attended Barber College and thereafter worked his way through college as a barber.

He attended the University of Illinois and Southern Illinois University for undergraduate study and then graduated from the Washington University School of Law in St. Louis in 1964.

After practicing law for a short time, Matoesian was appointed a judge in 1965 for the Third Judicial Circuit at the age of 28.

Having served as a trial judge for 14 years, he believes that his long judicial experience qualifies him for the office of circuit judge. Judge Matoesian points to his record, citing the fact that he has served as a judge in every kind of case, including divorce cases, juvenile cases, condemnation cases, rape cases, arson cases, burglary cases and personal injury cases.

GILMORE DISCUSSION Norman Mailer and William F. Buckley, Jr. will talk about Gary Gilmore in a Sunday, Dec. 9, broadcast of "Firing Line" at 5:30 p.m. on WSIE-FM (88.7). Mailer's new book is "The Executioner's Song," a nonfiction novel about convicted killer Gilmore, who was executed by a firing squad in Utah in January 1977.

Produce market barriers cited

Southern Illinois vegetable growers could make more money, and possibly help hold down produce prices, if they didn't sell through wholesale markets in St. Louis and Chicago, an agricultural economist contends.

However, there are several barriers to changing the current system, which ships much southern Illinois produce to St. Louis and then returns it to the area for retail marketing, says Lyle Solverson, associate professor of agribusiness economics in the SIUC School of Agriculture.

Solverson says direct sales of produce to retail markets would increase farmer incomes, but many stores have agreements with wholesalers that obligate them to buy their produce from a St. Louis central warehouse.

One reason for such an agreement, Solverson suggested, is that wholesalers generally can guarantee a steady supply of produce of consistent quality.

"Producers often lack adequate produce grading, packaging and health standards," Solverson said. "And, in most cases, they cannot guarantee a steady supply at all times."

There also are problems with direct retailing by the producers through U-pick operations, roadside stands and farmers' markets because of local government regulations, bylaws of existing farmers' markets, and poor merchandising techniques; some of these problems could probably be overcome through a cooperative marketing organization, Solverson believes.

Ladies, Start Your Engines

By SHIRLEY MULDOWEY

To repair the tire a combination of plug and patch should be used — the plug will fill the hole and the patch should be cemented to the inside of the tire.

Outside plug repairs and aerosol-type inflation repairs are only temporary and should never be made on radial tires.

Also, never repair a tire that is worn below 1/8th of an inch in tread depth. In most states tires worn to this point are legally bad. Using them can result in a fine.

Q. What is a repairable tire?

A. In racing we repair just about any part of an automobile with the exception of tires. A damaged tire is replaced.

But engineers at Goodyear say a puncture in a street automobile tire can be repaired if it is no bigger than one-quarter inch in diameter and if the puncture occurs in the tread area of the tire.

No tire should be repaired without having a serviceman remove it from the rim. By dismounting the tire the serviceman can determine the exact path the puncturing object took when it went through the tire.

Q. My husband keeps patching the exhaust pipe on our car but it still sounds noisy to me. Does his patching do any good?

A. Unless you have punched a hole in the pipe or muffler, a patch usually is only a short-range solution.

A rusted-out place in a pipe or the muffler means the system needs replacing. Also, the noise is only a warning. The real danger is the exhaust gases that are leaking under the car, gases that can find their way into the passenger compartment if they are not funneled properly to the rear of the car.

There are four or five basic components in the exhaust system — the exhaust manifold that attaches to the engine and collects the exhaust gases from the cylinders, the exhaust pipe that connects the manifold with the muffler, the muffler which channels the gases through perforated tubes to muffle the crackling sound of the exploding gasoline, and the tailpipe that carries the gases to the rear of the car. In late model cars there also is a catalytic converter — part of the government-mandated emissions system.

The exhaust system requires routine maintenance, but it should be inspected at regular intervals. Exhaust gases contain carbon monoxide, which is highly toxic. Small doses cause sleepiness or nausea. Larger amounts are fatal.

Secretary Brown's admission

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY

When Defense Secretary Harold Brown submits to questioning by reporters or congressmen, he speaks so slowly and deliberately that it almost seems he is hoping that his interrogators will run out of time before he has a chance to reveal any important information.

In a recent appearance on "Meet the Press," he almost succeeded in surviving the 30 minutes without saying anything significant, but not quite.

With one minute remaining, a reporter fired this question: "Mr. Secretary, Henry Kissinger has warned that, unless the United States takes dramatic steps to change the military balance, the United States will face a massive crisis in the 1980s. Do you agree?"

Brown replied: "It took us 15 years to get in the situation where the momentum is against us. It's going to take us some years to change that situation."

The impression he conveyed is that the previous administrations (which clearly included Kissinger) are to blame for the fact that the "momentum is against us," and that Sir Galahad Brown is nobly trying to remedy the mistakes of his predecessors. The truth of the matter is that Brown convinced himself out of his own mouth when he admitted that the decisive mistakes were made 15 years ago.

Here was the Defense Department lineup 15 years ago, in 1964, when those crucial decisions were made which started the momentum going against us. The secretary of defense was Robert Strange McNamara, who came into the government fresh from one of the classic business mistakes, the Edsel automobile. Since leaving the Defense Department, he has presided over the World Bank. He was in the Kennedy Compound at Hyannisport when Ted's advisers gathered to decide what story he should tell about Chappaquiddick. He was in the White House when the announcement was made about the Kennedy presidential campaign organization.

In 1964 the No. 2 man in the Defense Department, the deputy secretary of defense was Cyrus Vance, who has become better known in the Carter administration as secretary of state.

In 1964 the director of Defense Department Research and Engineering was none other than Harold Brown himself.

Within months, he moved up to the high post of secretary of the Air Force.

The 1964 roster of the Defense Department included many other names which have since become more familiar. Joseph A. Califano Jr. was special assistant to the secretary. The assistant secretary for public affairs was Arthur Sylvester who achieved fame for his statement that "it's an inherent government right, if necessary, to lie to save itself."

This 1964 Defense Department crew bears the responsibility for making the decisions which started the military momentum going against us. They reduced our strategic bomber fleet from 2,110 land-based and 800 carrier-based to only 680. They retired all our B-47 bombers although the SAC commander-in-chief said they could "deliver weapons in the year 2000."

The same McNamara-Vance-Brown team of 15 years ago decommissioned 149 of our 208 multi-megaton missiles, the "big guns" of our nuclear arsenal. They "took out," more effectively than any enemy could have done, all our multi-megaton Atlas and Titan I missiles and even dismantled their launching sites.

The same McNamara-Vance-Brown team of 15 years ago destroyed all our medium-range nuclear missiles, including the 105 we had on launching pads in England, Italy and Turkey, zeroed in on Soviet targets.

Then they closed down all our strategic missile bases close to Russia, as well as our bomber bases in Turkey, Italy, England and North Africa.

The McNamara-Vance-Brown team in 1964 and 1965 scrapped the biggest weapon in our arsenal, the B-47 bomber. They scrapped the powerful Skybolt missile, the great super-sonic B-70 bomber, and our Atlas missile. They canceled all plans for an anti-missile defense and for a civil defense shelter program.

Yes, Secretary Brown is correct. The peril our nation faces today is the result of decisions made 15 years ago. He and Vance made those decisions which started the "momentum against us."

Cancer Society joins anti-smoking campaign

By WILLIAM J.
GOLDWAG, M.D.

The American Cancer Society is finally getting into the act.

For many years, their primary emphasis has been on the early detection and treatment of cancer. The message of prevention which has become such an important and growing part of the medical picture in this country in recent years, has filtered down to this well-known representative of the conservative point of view about cancer therapy.

The Cancer Society is beginning a widespread effort to convince people that it is possible and desirable to quit smoking.

The number of organizations devoted to getting people to give up the weed has been growing almost as fast as the weight-loss groups throughout the nation. Some have obviously disagreed that there is big money to be made in showing people how to break some of their habits.

Perhaps one of the reasons for the proliferation of these "We'll help you stop even if you can't do it yourself" organizations is that it is often the same group of people who are always stopping something or other. As long as they eventually go back to whatever they gave up, there is a never-ending supply of people ready and sooner or later willing, to give it another go.

This new campaign by the Cancer Society is refreshing in that it will cost you nothing. They have published a booklet called "Quitter's Guide" — a seven-day plan to help you stop smoking cigarettes. In it, they give you all the reasons you can want for stopping the habit, plus a few blank spaces for you to fill in your own, and then some suggestions for carrying out your plan.

The purpose of this daily plan is to make you more aware of each cigarette smoked so that you can make conscious decisions about whether you really want to smoke, rather than continuing the unconscious habit of lighting up, smoking and never even realizing that you did it.

It is apparent that if you decide to quit, then you really don't want to smoke, or at least something more valuable than the smoking is taking over in importance. The idea is to reinforce this decision at every opportunity.

The same principle is used in many of the weight-control programs when they suggest that you write down everything that you eat in a day. This serves to make your unconscious habits into conscious choices.

Taking a hint from Alcoholics Anonymous, the booklet suggests you call them when the urge gets too strong and a corps of volunteers who have kicked the habit is available to render advice and support. Volunteer clinics that make it into a group experience are also being put into operation.

There is no doubt that for some people, quitting smoking is the kind of traumatic experience that makes them need all the help they can get. Like alcohol, once you've been addicted and then quit, don't trust yourself to dabble in one here and there. Any time you break your abstinence, you're a good bet to going back on the habit full blast. The first time, after a long time, and the second time you quit, it may not be as easy as the first time, since there is a feeling of having been a failure at it in your background.

More on the marijuana myth

By RALPH de TOLEDANO

WASHINGTON — I offer up the altar of reason to the condescending reaction of a clinical psychologist to my column on what marijuana does to human body, and how it is particularly destructive to young adolescents.

"Marijuana," he said, "why it's nothing! No worse than a bad cold."

I had this in mind when I attended a second seminar on pot at which a group of experts spoke — all men with high scientific credentials, worried sick by the anarchy of the public and the media.

Take, for example, what Dr. R.G. Heath, chairman of the department of psychiatry and neurology at Tulane University had to say at this conference sponsored by Citizens for Informative Marijuana, the American Council on Marijuana and Other Psychoactive Drugs, and Patient Care Publications.

Chronic, long-term use of marijuana changes the structure of brain cells, perhaps permanently, he said. The rapid rise of users in mental hospitals led him to add, "These people now comprise the largest single category of the mentally ill."

Laboratory tests on rhesus monkeys, which simulate like human beings, result in a significantly higher mortality rate in pregnancies, said Dr. Ethel M. Saksenrath, associate professor of behavioral psychology at the University of California School of Medicine. The effects range from delayed conception to sterility to stillbirths and early infant mortality.

Dr. Carol G. Smith, an assistant professor in pharmacology, who has been working on the effects of marijuana, noted that sex hormones, both male and female, are disrupted by the drug. As little as a single dose of THC, one of the most dangerous components of marijuana, affects fertility — and on teen-agers that impact can be permanent and irreversible.

Among teen-agers, too, marijuana not only destroys motivation, damages short-term memory and the capacity to learn, and impairs speech — but it also creates what — as described — is a kind of sexlessness. The habit demands stronger and stronger dosages and creates a psychic addictiveness. Its effect on the lungs is up to 10 times as damaging as that of tobacco.

To compare marijuana to alcohol is nonsense, the panelists agreed. True, in very large doses alcohol does damage when taken over a long period to the liver and even to brain cells. But — and this is my addition — recent studies have shown that three or four ounces of alcohol daily, and a normal drink contains three-fourths of an ounce, has beneficial effects on the system.

A recent book, "Marijuana: Biological Effects," some 800 pages of very heavy scientific data — sustains and goes beyond the statements made by the panel. It is not exactly light reading and — like many scientific treatises is very expensive — so I do not expect to find it on the night table of your average newspaper or TV commentator. But it should be there, because it would counteract the media propaganda that marijuana is harmless — or that we should be tolerant of the White House staffers who lighten their work load by smoking it.

Marijuana is no joke. Even small quantities, when in the brain and the genital system for long periods of time, it is being smoked — and pushed by children as young as 9, before, during and after school. The latest figure, moreover, is that almost 16 percent of our youngsters are on it regularly.

Why then does the media remain silent? Why then do police authorities turn their heads the other way?

Why do reputable reporters, all the paraphernalia that goes with pot smoking?

One reason is that it is a multi-billion industry. The second is that the media and our bleeding heart constituency have decided that those who fight marijuana are a part of a right-wing conspiracy to rob Americans of their civil rights and liberties.

Fortunately, parents have slowly begun to organize. Organizations like Citizens for Informative Marijuana are spreading the word.

Of course, there are still parents who believe that the teen-agers who "smoke" together stay together — and it does. But it was a rendezvous in the psychiatric ward or the cancer clinic.

Let's Talk

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN

Following a long session of counseling with a man who thought himself devoid of friendship, I boiled down all I knew to find the formula for friendship. In essence, it is to be honestly yourself. When you are a truly authentic person, and honestly place yourself face to face with someone who has the same interests, and are sincerely of a like mind, there cannot help but come out of the relationship a real friendship. Apply this to your lifestyle and you have the basis for forming lasting and deep relationships that will be strong friendships all of your life.

Now underline the words, "common interests," because common experiences and mind form the bridges over which personalities can exchange commitment which makes deep and lasting relationships possible.

The question then arises as to how this is to be done.

"I am very shy," "I do not make friends easily" or "I have been a loner all of my life." If you decide to work for your political party, in a service club, or in your faith, you raise your hand and say that you would like to have a job, and you will be inundated with offers, possibilities and opportunities you would not dream exist standing on the outside.

Friendship circles form slowly. As warmly as the newcomer may be welcomed, it is only human nature to put that person on probation. If such a person proves to be an interloper, archly forcing their way in too rapidly, they are just as likely to be frozen out. Friendship is a letting down of the walls between people. If this person newest on the scene cannot be trusted with the sensitivity that comes with friendship, then the walls are rebuilt.

If one proves to be good-natured, industrious, and willing to be open, and if they play the waiting game with skill and patience, and show that they are not a judgmental or bitter person, friendship will not be long in coming.

Most people I know use the average number of platitudes and predictable routine remarks, and once in awhile there is a marvelous pun that is shared between us. After a good deal of reflection I have concluded that smart society of which you and I dream is really pretty much of a myth.

Consider that the really great writers describe ordinary folk. The acknowledged ageless painters put on canvas familiar scenes. The eloquent orator comes back to the people for inspiration and guidance. It is a marvelous thing to have a friend, but you have to allow that person to be authentically their own self. Sharing honestly, without the pretense, forms the bonds which make up the cable of honest friendship, even sharing and appreciating your common dullness.

It is no cliché, in fact, "to be a friend, is to have a friend." Be what you want to find, and you will soon find others of like mind, looking for you. Works every time.

Did You Know

Hair tints

By PHYLLIS WEAVER

Did you know that dying or tinting your hair doesn't always mean you get to have more fun? In fact, it may mean ending your fun!

It's been found that many hair dyes can damage the genetic material of bacteria, and can cause cancer in laboratory animals. Early studies did not reveal this relationship between hair chemicals and cancer. But studies now show different findings which consider length of exposure time to hair dye chemicals and the time lag between exposure and actual occurrence of the disease.

Laboratory animals aren't humans, yet the carefully controlled study considered many variables. The conclusion is that women who use hair dyes and women who get breast cancer are different from those women who don't use the dyes and who don't get breast cancer.

The studies aren't considered conclusive, but your hairdresser may not be the only one who knows for sure.

They plan to get even at polls

By GRACE-MARIE ARNETT

WASHINGTON — Sam Hershey is a mechanic in Cincinnati who says he plans to "vote his paycheck" in the 1980 elections.

He doesn't understand economics, he distrusts politicians and he's mad at President Carter. But he plans to find out who is chopping away at his paycheck and he will use his vote to retaliate in next year's elections.

Hershey is not alone. He is typical of the average American blue-collar worker. In the last 14 years, he has doubled his wages, but his family's living standard has dropped.

"I used to be able to have a steak dinner once in awhile and buy a ticket to the football game," he said. "Now I can't do either one."

In 1965, Hershey (not his real name) earned $95 a week and took home $91 after Social Security and federal income taxes were subtracted. Last week, his total check was $224 and he brought home $198.

"I'm making more money, more than I ever thought I would see," Hershey said, "but prices are going up faster than my pay."

Congress' Joint Economic Committee can explain. Economist Charles Bradford says that as Hershey's pay went up, it was pushed into a higher and higher tax bracket.

Each year Hershey got a raise and each year the government took a bigger bite of his check until today, Hershey's buying power is actually less than it was when he started his job.

Inflation, of course, is the culprit, along with the progressive tax system which increases the amount of money the government takes as workers earn more. One more simple set of numbers tells the whole story.

Economists have magical ways of eliminating the inflation factor from pay figures to give income in terms of real buying power.

In 1968, a worker earned $101 on this absolute scale. Today, he earns $100. But here is the clincher: Fourteen years ago, the federal government took about $9 of his pay. Today it takes about $12.

As a result, a blue-collar worker had a real take-home pay of $82 in the mid-60s. Today, it's $68.

No wonder Hershey is mad.

The problem politicians will have next year is trying to convince Hershey things are going to change.

Republicans say the only way things can change is to enact a massive across-the-board cut in personal income taxes so Hershey can keep more of his earnings.

The Democrats, led by President Carter, disagree. They say those extra dollars Hershey will get will simply contribute further to inflation because he'll spend it and jack up prices.

Recession and unemployment, or tax cuts and inflation. The choice is not an easy one, especially for politicians who don't like hard choices.

The ultimate question is whether politicians will follow their tradition of approving tax cuts in an election year.

I doubt very seriously that we will have any tax cut in 1980," President Carter said in a news conference this summer. "My own responsibility is to deal with the inflation question. I would forego the tax reduction and insist upon controlling inflation and cutting the deficit."

Now we hear from the Republicans: "We must cut taxes in a way that will stimulate investment," GOP presidential candidate George Bush told a Washington Press Club audience here recently.

House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., is the highest ranking Republican official in the country.

"We Republicans want a cut in personal taxes now," Rhodes told a recent news conference. "We Republicans offer a budget of hope and opportunity for all Americans."

"The Democrats' solutions add up to a budget of despair," he said. "They want to solve our economic problems by taking more tax dollars from Americans to pay for more government."

And from the economists' corner comes Herbert Stein, former economic adviser to President Nixon. "Whether or not it is a good thing, a tax reduction is irresistibly attractive to politicians in an election year, especially if that is a year of recession."

So what is likely to happen? If history offers any lessons, a glance back to 1978 might be useful.

Last year, Republicans were also insisting the only cure to the nation's woes was a tax cut. Proposition 13 in California confirmed their belief.

When the Democrats saw the bandwagon rolling, they decided to jump on and actually enacted a tax cut in 1978.

"The voters rewarded the tax cutters at the polls."

But many of the voters now feel they were fooled. The numbers suggest they are right.

Social Security taxes were actually increased, with plans for even higher hikes in 1981. And while federal income taxes were whittled somewhat, it was mostly a "media" tax cut — a lot of show but little real relief from tax increases for the average worker.

This inflation-tax increase spiral started in the 1960s, but the effects didn't begin to show up clearly until this decade.

In 1970, the federal government took in $194 billion in general revenue. In 1980, it expects to collect $509 billion.

The most startling aspect of this is that Congress has not voted a single increase in income tax rates in the last 10 years. Workers are paying more simply because they are getting cost-of-living increases that push them into higher tax brackets where the government can take more of their wages.

Between 1965 and 1975, the number of people paying 20 percent of their income in taxes rose from one-fifth of the work force to more than half of all workers.

Everyone is paying more to the government. Hershey says it's time to stop.

Many senior politicians here like to think the 1978 interest in cutting taxes was an anomaly. Proposition 13 was a specific response to an unusual set of circumstances in California that can't be generalized to the nation as a whole, they say.

Most don't expect tax cuts to be a major issue in 1980.

On one hand we have President Carter refusing any talk of tax cuts in his administration. On the other we have Republicans who say tax cuts are the foundation of the nation's problems and they'll talk of nothing else in 1980.

And in the middle we have the voters — and Hershey — who will make the final decision.

A checklist for new parents

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Q. My wife and I are expecting our first baby, and we want to be "good parents." We have been taking a course at a college nearby on child development which includes some emphasis on parent education, and we feel we have the matter pretty well in hand.

What worries us is that we know some families which seem to provide a wonderful environment for their children, and yet some of the children have been in really serious trouble related to their school work, drugs or something else.

We would like to do our best to guarantee not to run into situations like that, and feel that with your experience you might be able to provide some guidelines for us.

A. No one can "guarantee" smooth sailing with children, but there are some obvious attitudes and practices which seem to pay off. The quality of time we spend with them, an open line of communication, fairness, an honest display of affection, the example we set, and respect for their ideas and privacy are among the major factors you might consider.

The problem is that there are so-called "vulnerable" children who seem to be problem-prone no matter how enriched and loving their environment is — and there are "invulnerable" ones who seem able to survive even the most limited family situations, even child abusive ones.

Santa to visit Pontoon Dec. 21

Santa Claus will visit children at Pontoon Beach, beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 21, in special invitation of the Pontoon Beach Village Board.

The invitation was extended at the board's recessed meeting Monday night when the board voted to purchase 1,200 boxes of candy from Kovach Candy of Granite City at a total cost of $450. Santa will not have to search for heavy candy with him.

Santa will tour the village, escorted by village policeman and Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department personnel and vehicles.

Parents are requested to keep their children inside until they hear the sirens and horns which will mark Santa's arrival in their neighborhoods.

In other business Monday night, the board signed an application which is the first step to apply for a grant from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency for 75 percent funding so an infiltration and inflow study can be conducted on the Quiet Valley sanitary sewers.

The study will be required and repairs must be completed before the subdivisions sewerage will be hooked into the new county sanitary sewers.

If the grant is approved, the federal government will pay $30,000 of the cost of the sewer testing while the village will pay 25 percent, or $10,000.

An amendment to the village's liquor licenses ordinance was approved which increases the number of Class A liquor licenses from five to six.

The amendment will allow Charles "Skip" Parnley to operate the former Al's Place, 4001 Kaseberg Lane, as "Skip Inn." Parnley is the son of the former owner.

The new license will be available Dec. 15, when the ordinance amendment becomes effective. The amendment did not change the number of club licenses in the village, which remains at 10.

On the recommendation of Village Board President Paul Bennett, the trustees named Police Sgt. Harold Denham as assistant chief of the Pontoon Beach Police Department. He was granted a five percent salary increase. The village has not utilized an assistant chief in many years.

Denham was the chief of the department until Rosewell Bennett Jr. was appointed to that position in 1972.

Spouse IDs at university

Through an "Employee Spouse Identification Card" plan, married partners of individuals employed by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will receive some of the benefits normally extended only to employees.

Ria Frijters, vice-president for business affairs at the university, said the spouse ID card concept originated with the SUE Women's Club, whose members were concerned that spouses have no means of identifying themselves except through the use of the employee's identification.

Mrs. Mary Ann Shaw, adviser to the executive board of the Women's Club, said the added convenience of spouses having their own means of identification will allow members of the family to participate in several different activities at the same time, and will remove the problem of SUE employees forgetting to leave their ID cards behind for fans of the use of them are away from home.

Essentially, the married partners will be entitled to discount privileges at the School of Dental Medicine clinic, as well as other service benefits they have been receiving all along through the use of the employee's identification card. Holders of the employee spouse identification card will have access to the Tower Lake recreation area, Bubble Gym and University Center recreation facilities. User fees still must be paid where they apply, Dr. Frijters said.

Where faculty and staff rates apply, discounted rates to athletic events will also be extended to holders of the new identification card.

The card will also allow married partners of SUE employees to attend musical and theatrical activities where diversified fee structures are in effect.

Employee benefits not affected by the spouse ID card include tuition waivers, fringe benefits of salaried personnel, parking decals, and library checkout services.

Beginning Jan. 2, employee spouse ID cards will be issued upon request at the Office of the Bursar, on the first floor of the John S. Rendleman Building.

To receive a spouse ID card, married partners of SUE employees must have in their possession their husband or wife's current ID card or appointment authorization card. Persons applying for cards may also be requested to provide additional identification, such as a driver's license or credit card, Dr. Frijters said.

The card will be renewed annually upon presentation of the husband's or wife's employee ID.

Right response to the taking of life still hard to define

How can civilized society adequately respond to the wanton taking of life? The long unanswered question is not much nearer to a solution.

Just yesterday, Madison County circuit court proceeding found Edward Nitz of Cottage Hills—charged with beating his mother to death with a barbell weight 15 months ago—innocent by reason of insanity.

While there is considerable precedent for such a ruling, it is hard to regard it as satisfactory. There have been numerous instances in which the mentally ill have been declared later to be well, leading to their release from custody and supervision, without much of a court conviction to mark their record.

The rationalization is that, in such cases, the killer lacked the capacity at that time to appreciate the criminality of his conduct, and therefore could not be expected to make his conduct conform to the law and other persons' right to life.

The previous day, Tuesday, Dec. 4, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved by 74 legislation to reinstate the death penalty for certain federal crimes—and the American Civil Liberties Union responded immediately by saying it will wage an all-out fight against it.

The proposal would permit capital punishment for the federal crimes of murder, espionage, treason and airline hijacking in which someone is killed. It was drafted to avoid constitutional objections cited by the U. S. Supreme Court in 1972 in striking down the Georgia death penalty law and, by implication, those of all other states.

It also takes into account other guidelines mentioned by the high court since its 1972 ruling, in its reviews of capital punishment statutes reimposed by various states.

It calls for a two-trial plan in crimes where the death penalty would be a possibility; the first trial would establish guilt or innocence, and the second would determine whether the death sentence should be imposed.

Meanwhile, the first review of Illinois' present (since June 1977) death penalty law, the U. S. Supreme Court will be asked whether Ronald E. Brown, a convicted murderer, should be executed.

Although this state does not approach Florida's big "death row" population, 16 men have been sentenced to death in Illinois (none executed) in the past two and a half years.

The Illinois Supreme Court by a 4-3 vote has upheld a key part of the law, giving prosecutors power to obtain a separate hearing after a person is convicted, on whether the person should be sentenced to die. The state court will be asked to delay its ruling on whether there should be a death penalty hearing on Brown, instead allowing time for federal review of the issue.

All of which shows there is considerable inclination on the part of lawmakers and citizens to reimpose capital punishment, but such deep-seated court hesitancy that only a few past executions actually have occurred in the past two decades.

During the time that it has become more difficult to secure formal approval of the death penalty, its informal application has begun to seem more and more appropriate to many people. Today's national news included word of a man protecting his sister, and interrupting an intruder's rape attempt, by blowing off the assailant's head with a shotgun blast.

Registration now for GC day college's next semester

Just as it was important to get the daylong college counter here off to a solid start this fall, it is also vital that Quad-Cityans respond to the courses being offered for the second semester of 1979-80. Registration began yesterday and will continue through Friday, Dec. 14, at the Belleville Area College instructional center in the former Washington School on West 26th Street. Counselors are present to assist in the 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. registration of students.

Schedules of spring semester classes have been mailed to all homes in the BAC district, and telephone registration has started at the main college campus. Those who did not receive a schedule may call the office of public information, 235-2700, extension 351, to obtain one.

Washington School's BAC credit courses beginning Jan. 12 will include algebra, logic, American government, general and social psychology, sociology, the family, public speaking, business mathematics, marketing, real estate, data processing, personnel management, business communications, small business management, accounting, economics, business law, writing lab, rhetoric and composition, French, U. S. history, health, first-aid, problems in society, enforcement, police administration, police patrol and services, criminology, literature, and training of emergency medical technicians.

This is a diverse array of courses, a choice of study that undoubtedly could prove useful to many local residents.

To help assure the permanence of the day college in this community, all who could profit from attending it will need to give serious thought to enrolling this week or next week.

Increase in highway improvement without a gasoline tax increase

To the Editor:

I am announcing my intention to file for re-election as Republican Representative from the 56th District.

As the senior Illinois House member in terms of seniority from our district, I believe I can serve with increased effectiveness during the next two years. I intend to run on my record of the last five years.

During my present term, I am gratified to have played a role in the formulation of a four-year state transportation program which will mean substantial highway improvements for our area in the next few years.

Illinois Secretary of Transportation John Kramer has credited my legislative proposal, HB 814, as providing an alternative to a gasoline tax increase, in order to properly fund our road system.

Within the past few weeks, legislation I have sponsored to protect against telephone harassment has been tested in the Illinois Supreme Court and upheld as constitutional.

Legislation which I have introduced to protect motorists from lengthy highway blockages at railroad intersections, to provide golden age hunting and fishing licenses for senior citizens, and to require that a location be selected for replacement of the Clark bridge at Alton will, I feel, bring meaningful benefits to the people of our district and state.

I believe it is important to continue to hold down overall state spending, to balance our state budget, and to enact tax relief for our citizens to the fullest extent our state revenues will permit.

As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I hope to be directly involved in this effort.

I have endeavored during the past few years to keep close to the voters, to listen to the problems of the people of our district, through the use of a mobile office, and through district office facilities at Alton, Granite City and Glen Carbon.

With the help and continued confidence of the people of the 56th District, I hope to continue in these legislative efforts, and to improve upon these services in the future.

There is a movie being shown in our area which is filthy and indecent. The name of the movie is the Life of Brian, another scandalous movie from the Monty Python troupe.

This movie is profane and should be boycotted by all people who are sincere believers in Jesus Christ.

Should we allow movies to be shown in our area which portray the Mother of Jesus as a prostitute, John the Baptist as a drunken idiot, and the "father" of Jesus as a Roman soldier who raped Mary?

This is trash, filthy and obscene in its purest form. America does need to laugh, but not at Jesus and our own Christian heritage and values.

How long will we be intimidated by unscrupulous movie makers before we will fight back in self-defense? Maybe some conscientious lawyer or politician can

NEIL HARTIGAN

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — It is often said around the Statehouse that if Neil Hartigan were a Republican he would be governor today.

It is a fact that Hartigan has over the years been a bulldozer in the sense of leading Republicans than he has with the powers that be in his own party. It has been his lot to be persistently squeezed in the crumpled that have developed within the Democratic leadership.

During his four years as Lieutenant governor he was shabbily treated by Gov. Dan Walker who could not forget that Hartigan had run on an opposition primary headed by then Lt. Gov. Paul Simon. In 1976 a bloody political fight between the forces of Mayor Richard Daley and Walker was to see Hartigan go down to landslide defeat in the fall of 1976.

Now Hartigan, still at a comparatively young political age of 41, is in another hotbox. He has aroused the ire of the state's No. 1 Democrat, Mayor Jane Byrne.

Byrne, who in some eight months in office has been polishing the art of the political low blow to a sheer rare even for Chicago, also tried to tie in Hartigan's endorsement with the banking maneuvers of former top Carter aide Bert Lance.

Hartigan, an executive of the First National Bank of Chicago, which once made a controversial loan to Lance.

At his press conference here Hartigan was asked if the bank supported his endorsement move. He replied that he had acted on his own and that the bank was not involved in the move.

He gave substance to insinuations bouncing down the Illinois political trail.

Hartigan was going for Mr. Carter. The move was a surprise because Hartigan has been keeping a low political profile since the 1976 campaign and declined suggestions that he run for the Senate seat being vacated by Adlai Stevenson. But his entry into the Carter-Kennedy fight is certain to put him back in the political spotlight.

One of the first to touch on the obvious — a possible Hartigan race for governor in 1982 — was retiring Democratic state Sen. John Knappell of Havana. He called to take friendly issue with this column's assessment of the recent legislative session. (I thought the Legislature had done a good job.)

In our discussion Knappell contrasted Hartigan's independent defiance of Byrne with Senate Democratic Leader Phil Rock's performance at the fall session, during which he supported the Byrne-Thompson alliance on the sales tax issue.

"He (Rock) had strings running from his legs and arms. He was a puppet," Hartigan said.

Like many downstate Democrats who are becoming disenchanted with Byrne, Knappell blames her failure of Democrats to override the Thompson veto of their own plan to provide the automatic removal of the sales tax on food and medicine within four years.

"We are just beginning to learn about Jane Byrne. She's a mean-tempered little witch."

Hartigan's defiance of her on the Carter-Kennedy issue, Knappell says, makes him a "strongly viable" candidate for governor in 1982. Rock has expressed an interest in the nomination. Knappell noted that the only two Democrats elected governor in the last 30 years — Otto Kerner and Dan Walker — were considered either as independent or of opposed to the Chicago Democratic organization.

Meanwhile, it is too early to tell whether the Hartigan move to Mr. Carter will trigger major Democratic defections from the supposedly Illinois bandwagon for Kennedy. Knappell, who describes himself as a strong friend of the Kennedy family, criticized Byrne chiefly for turning on the President so early. He says Mr. Carter needs party support in a trying time. The Illinois March primary continues to shape up as perhaps the big presidential showdown of next spring. Kennedy still rates as a heavy favorite, but there is increasing interest in whether he may face a serious fight.

WHY CAN'T WASHINGTON LET BUSINESS ALONE?

HELLO, WASHINGTON?

Illinois leads in train derailments

By BOB WREN

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois leads the nation in train derailments, Federal Rail Administration statistics show.

But that's not surprising, considering the state is second only to Texas in miles of track.

About 11,255 miles of track, serving 28 rail companies, crisscross Illinois from Cairo to Chicago.

There were 374 mainline derailments in the state in 1978, a slight increase from 354 in 1977. But those figures are a bit misleading because they don't include more than 500 additional accidents that occurred each year in rail yards.

The statistics do not surprise the Illinois Commerce Commission's rail road division, which for the last four years has been sharing rail accident reporting in the state with the FRA.

The ICC is responsible for investigating all rail accidents that occur south of Peoria, while the FRA investigates incidents in the northern part of the state.

ICC officials are quick to point out that, as long as there are trains, there'll be derailments.

"We'll probably be among the worst in any year," said the ICC's Bernie Morris.

"You have to keep in mind that Illinois has more miles of track than nearly any other state except Texas, and Chicago and East St. Louis rail traffic is as dense as anywhere in the country," he said.

"If you were to look at it percentage-wise, we would probably come out a lot better."

Vern Hussey, ICC utility engineer, said derailments, ironically, are a good sign.

"If we didn't have derailments, we would probably be right in the middle of a depression, because that would mean the trains aren't moving," he said.

"The only way not to have derailments is not to have trains go anywhere."

"It's like automobiles," Hussey said. "As long as you have people driving, you're going to have accidents."

Poor track conditions are cited in up to 50 percent of derailments, with equipment failure (such as switches) and human error each given as the reason in 20 to 25 percent of the incidents.

A small percentage is attributed to vandalism, such as people removing ties from a track.

In investigating the causes of a derailment, the ICC's Bernie Morris said faulty track backer with fingers are first pointed — some times too often.

"Even on a track that makes sense, that's not always the case," said Morris.

One of the ICC's three rail inspectors.

"If you have a 50-car train and the 35th car jumps, it may not have been the track at all," he said. "It might have been that 35th car had a bad flange (on a wheel) that made it jump."

Many cases, a shifting load in one car can do it, Hussey said.

"All a car has to do is have a wheel leave the track for a split second," he said.

Weather also can contribute to derailments, causing ties to deteriorate and tracks to break.

"You can have flood conditions where the track simply won't hold up under the pressure of a train," Hussey said.

"And they haven't invented the kind of steel that won't crack when weather conditions get to 40 below zero."

In an attempt to cut down the number of derailments, tracks are classified according to the speed trains can travel on them. Tracks are classified from class I to class VI.

A class I track limits passenger trains to 15 miles per hour and a freight train to 10 mph. A class VI track allows a train to travel at 110 mph, but no tracks in Illinois are rated that high.

The only alternative to rating tracks would be to prohibit their use, which would mean financial ruin for many railroads.

"You have to move something," Morris said. "A railroad has the same problems every other business has, except the public can see what they're working with."

"The trucking industry, for example, has the advantage of having the (interstate) highways maintained by the government. The railroads have no such advantage."

Ideally, all railroads would run on class VI track. But "just to repair a tie costs a railroad $25 — and that's just one tie," Hussey said.

Many derailments have involved trains hauling chemicals, but Morris said less than 5 percent involved actual hazardous materials.

Some of the chemicals spilled are more noxious than they are dangerous, Hussey said.

"We had one in Nakomis earlier this year that spilled anhydrous ammonia, and the smell of it will drive you away before it has a chance to hurt you."

In the event of chemical spills, any government, personnel equipped to handle emergencies are on the scene almost immediately, including the state Environmental Protection Agency and law enforcement personnel, Morris said.

"We have it pretty well worked out," he said. "Our people are there, and the EPA is always on the scene. The emergency services director is notified, and state police are called for traffic control."

He was charged specifically with trying to poison a 30-member French tourist group. But, like anything else, the quality of the photograph varies tremendously, depending on the skill of the photographer. Some of this century's greatest photographs are contained in this volume, selected from an exhibition that was held in Venice last summer. The photographs are fascinating: a construction worker dangling high over Manhattan on a cable during construction of the Empire State Building in the early 1930s, an excellent photograph of Annie Oakley when she was with the Buffalo Bill circus, a mother and child in a steaming Saigon swamp in 1944, a stunning color photo of a Japanese soldier in a trench, and a group of photographers working at the level of artists.

North's lower weights too much for East

By DOUG IRVIN
for the Press-Record
BELLEVILLE — The wrestling Stealers of Granite City North compiled an early 27-0 lead over the Lancers of Belleville East and went on to win 32-20 here Tuesday. North's lower weights did well — as Coach Walt Whitaker had anticipated. Tracy Patton, one of North's five starting seniors, performed well at 119 pounds. Patton stuck his opponent in a crusher-crackle which he applied from a standing position. This move was so tight that Jim Tiemann (who started last year as a freshman for the Lancers) could do nothing to get out of it. The match ended at the 50 second mark. North pinned two other Lancers. At 112 pounds, junior Jerry Miller cracked Dave Kettler and won in 4:40. Bobby Kirgan, a senior for North at 126, put away Todd Galbreath with a "figure four" head lock after a near pin by combining a half nelson with an arm bar. Mike Robinson at 98 pounds received a forfeit from the Lancers as East's regular 98 pounder, sophomore Jeff Arrendel is out with a broken collar bone. North's sophomore Steve Smith decisioned Rich Norheutl, 4-0.

Steve Gibson, a 132 pound Junior at North, lost a regular decision to Jerry Malin. Their score was tied at 5-5 before Malin exploded to win 13-8. Senior Kevin Shemwell at 138 defeated Chris Steele 6-2. Shemwell got the original takedown, but gave up a reversal in the start of the second period. He reversed Steele back and scored two more points in the final period.

Scott Corey, a sophomore at 145, fell to Tony Castiller 4-3, and Brad Taylor lost a major decision to Eddie Brydon, 9-1 at 155 pounds. After the 155 pound match, the score was 30-10 — North. With a 20 point difference and only three matches remaining, there was no way possible for East to win the meet. But, they tried.

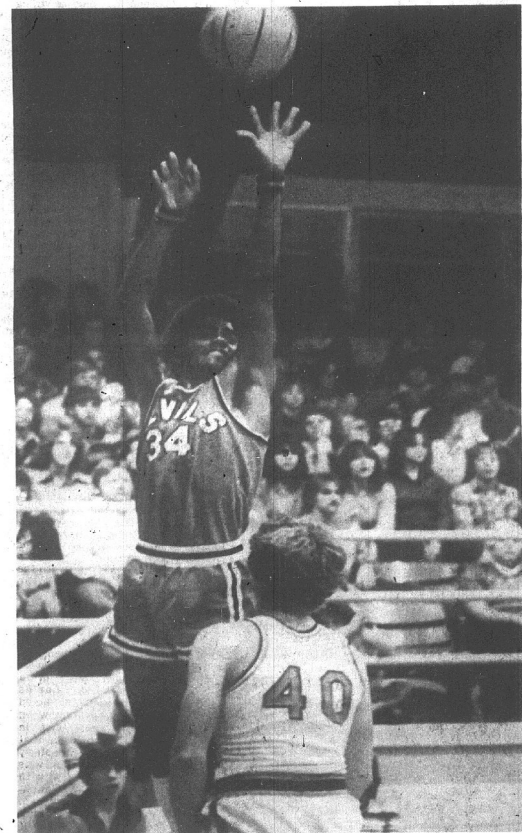

Of these last three, the Lancers won two and tied one. At 167, Tom Nance of North lost a superior decision to Terry Seaman. Sophomore Dave Owens was beaten by East's Dave Wuebbels, 15-8.

The heavyweight match remained as the team score was 30-18. Junior Tim Wyrostek of the Stealers battled senior Steve Marxer. Both athletes are relatively light heavyweights. Marxer led 2-0 with the Red Devils sluggish in loss

By KEVIN ALLEN
of the Press-Record
OKAWVILLE — If the Venice basketball Red Devils aren't scratching and clawing around the end of the game, look out, they'll probably lose.

It seems the Red Devils won't be involved in many laughs this year — at least that's the pattern so far. Tuesday night here there was no scratch or claw in the Devils as the clock clicked down toward the end.

There wasn't any laughter either.

Venice lost to Okawville, 49-35. It wasn't, you may notice, exactly a wild scoring affair. "This is two games in a row now we haven't played well," Venice coach Ken Perkins said. "I don't know what the problem is. Last Saturday, we couldn't make free throws. Tonight we couldn't make anything."

Last Saturday, the Devils lost to Jacksonville, 86-70. Before that they had sneaked past their first opponent — St. Paul Highland — in overtime.

Against the Okawville Rockets though, a third quarter slump spelled the fate that awaited Venice.

The first half ended with Okawville two points ahead, 19-17. Venice had the ball with seconds to go before halftime, but failed to tie the score.

When the second half began, the Devils didn't. Venice added points 18 and 19 after almost three minutes of the period had expired.

They added only eight more the rest of the quarter. While Venice was having its trouble though, Okawville continued on its steady, albeit sluggish, offensive course.

At the end of the quarter, the Rockets held a 35-27 advantage.

"We just came out cold," Perkins said. "That's all there is to it. When you get behind these guys there's no coming back. When we got down by eight points it was all over."

Okawville's height was the most imposing obstacle to a Venice comeback.

Gary Moeller, the Rocket's 6-4 center, and 6-2 forward

Mike Stine looked down their throats. Venice's 6-1 Kevin Wigfall and 6-2 Donald Gardner.

Despite their disadvantage though, the Devils held their own under the basket against the Rockets in the first half.

But in the second half the Rockets began to take control of the boards.

"We didn't have a good night jumping," Perkins said. "We did OK in the beginning, but later we were coming up with the ball two and three times but missing our shots. When they got the rebound it was right back in."

While the Rockets weren't working under the basket, they managed to beat Venice with quick outlet passes downcourt to streaking Alan Lake.

Okawville's big men underneath cleaned the boards and fed the long passes to their guards.

"Speed wasn't the factor," Perkins said. "We could stay with them. We just didn't adjust. I kept telling my guys that they couldn't let them get behind them. When they did we got burned."

Press-Record Sports

GRANITE CITY (ILL.) PRESS-RECORD, Thursday, Dec. 6, 1979—23

Perkins said. "We could stay with them. We just didn't adjust. I kept telling my guys that they couldn't let them get behind them. When they did we got burned."

After the first quarter, the pattern of the game seemingly was set. Both teams played strong defense, and kept the score low. It was 10-9 Rockets when the second period began.

The pattern held up through the second period. The play beneath the baskets was intense, and at times Okawville seemed ready to take control.

But the Devils stayed close, until they came out for the second half. "I think we played an aggressive zone," Perkins said. "We couldn't go all out and run at them do-or-die. We had to respect their height."

"I think they outmuscled us inside. You just don't stop them once they penetrate."

The Devils stopped the Rockets at times in the fourth quarter, and appeared to mount a comeback. At a point about three minutes into the period, Venice cut the lead to 35-31.

But Okawville ended that shortly, as it began to get behind the Venice defense, outdoing the Devils at their own running game.

"We've got some speed," Perkins said. "We just don't have that explosive speed that some people have."

In its place Venice has scratches and claws. Only if, that missing, look out.

Cougars favorites at finals

EDWARDSVILLE — The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville soccer team, by virtue of its resounding 4-2 victory over the University of San Francisco, Saturday, jumped into second place in the latest Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America poll. SIUE (17-2-3) is unbeaten in its last 18 games.

The Cougars received six first-place votes and 332 overall points but remained behind Alabama A & M, this week's top-ranked squad. The Bulldogs, 2-0 winners over Eastern Illinois in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II finals last weekend, accumulated 16 first-place votes and 367 points to go along with their 22-1 record.

Ranked third this week is Clemson (15-1-1), 1-0 victors over American U. (14-3-3) in their NCAA Division I quarter-final matchup, and fourth is Penn St., 2-2 upset winners over previously top-rated Indiana, Columbia U., 14-21 defeated Rhode Island in the other quarter-final encounter, 5-1, and is rated fifth.

Rounding out the top 10 are: Indiana (19-2-1), San Francisco (23-1-1), Rhode Island (14-4-1), Southern Methodist (15-2-1), and Cleveland State (14-3-2).

SIUE will journey to Tampa, Fla., this weekend (Dec. 8-9) to knock heads with Penn State in one semi-final game, while Clemson battles Columbia. The two winners meet Sunday afternoon for the NCAA title.

The Cougars, which finished third in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic tourney, are still missing from the ISAA top 20.

The Cougars have defeated five of the top-ranked clubs (San Francisco, SMU, Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 16th, Simon Fraser, and Santa Clara, 18th), along with Eastern Illinois (second in Division II), and Western Illinois (ninth in Division II). Seattle-Pacific, ranked third in Division II and 19th overall, and San Francisco were the only clubs to upset SIUE this year. The Cougars, of course, averaged that 2-2 loss to USP, but will not get another crack at Seattle-Pacific, last year's NCAA Division II national champion.

Alabama A & M is the top-ranked team in Division II.

The University of Missouri at St. Louis finished in the No. 6 slot in that Division.

"I figured if (Alabama A & M beat Eastern Illinois) in the finals of Division II, they would be ranked ahead of us," said SIUE Assistant Coach Rick Benben. "Maybe if we win the (Division II) title, we'll get the top ranking."

St. Louis U. dropped out of the top 20 this week.

Salukis trying to weather the storm

EDITORS NOTE: The following is the first of a series on area college basketball teams.

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor of the Press-Record

CARBONDALE — If you see Joe Gottfried on the street acting as if he's ducking bullets, don't be surprised. The Southern Illinois University-Carbondale basketball coach has every right to feel as if someone's out to get him.

Gottfried, in his second year at SIU-C, had high hopes for his club going into this season. But because of injuries and ineptitudes, he probably needs a program himself to recognize the players. First, it was starting forward Richard Ford and reserve center Al

Grant who said they would not be returning to the Salukis this season because of grade problems. But that Gottfried could take. But about a month ago, a series of events in a single week left him shell-shocked.

First, 6'11" center Rod Camp, a junior college transfer, was declared scholastically ineligible by the NCAA in a controversial decision. Then, Charles Nance, a freshman guard the Salukis were planning on using extensively, broke his shooting hand. But that wasn't all.

That same week, Camp's replacement at center, Edward Thomas, broke a thumb and required surgery. The Salukis' outlook for the season looked bleak at the time. But they still had Wayne Abrams, an all-American candidate. But not for long.

Last week, Abrams scratched the retina in his right eye, blurring his vision. Even though he played last Saturday in the Salukis' opening game loss to Evansville, he was held out Monday night in SIU's 94-86 home-opening game win over Valparaiso University.

But in the long run, the injuries could in effect help Gottfried's cause. What's that? Something good could come out of all this? That's right.

Because of the depleted roster, several players have come to the forefront to take up the slack.

The 100th mile

Granite Cityan Rick Rose tried twice to get into record book

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of excerpts from an article on Granite City distance runner Rick Rose, the world's record holder for the 100 mile run. It appeared in Focus Magazine, a publication of SIU-Edwardsville and was written by journalism student Charlie Skae.

By CHARLIE SKAE

Rick Rose first got the idea of breaking the 100-mile run when he read an article in the Granite City Press-Record, the community's newspaper. That was in September of 1971, when Gus Schalkahn from Granite City tried breaking the record and ran 75 miles before getting cramps and having to stop.

"I looked at that article and thought, 'Wow, wouldn't that be a trip?'" he said. "So I started seriously taking it as a challenge. When I found I could run 20 miles, come home, take a bath and still be a normal person, I thought I'd take a shot at it."

In his first five attempts, the farthest he ran was 52 miles, while the shortest was 17 miles. In most of these attempts, he had problems with cramps.

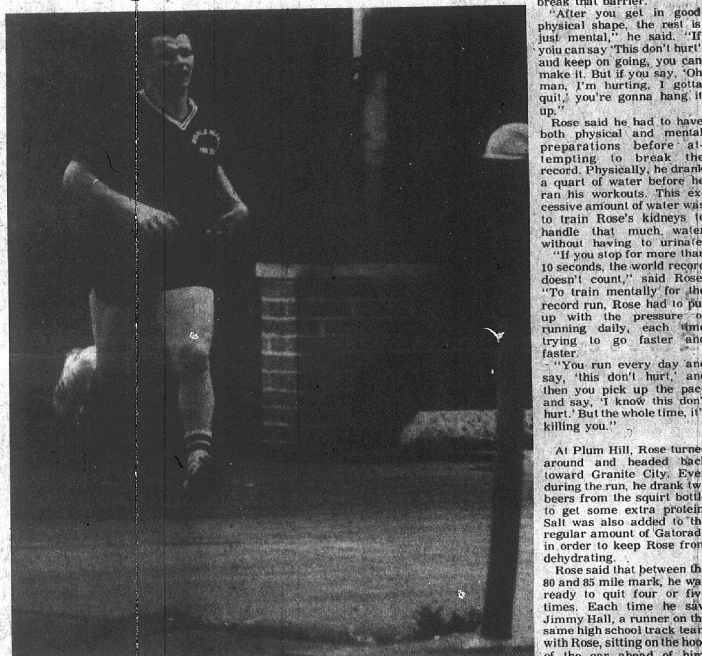

"I've had cramps before and they're PAINful, boy."

It's just like taking a belt and wrapping it around your legs and keeping it there the e just as tight as two guys can pull it," he said.

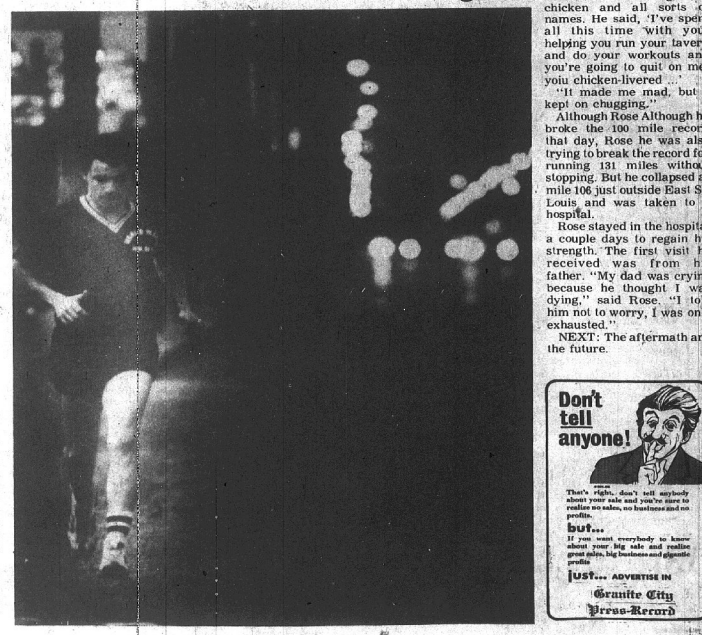

But in April of 1974, the medical diagnosis from Randy Biggerstaff, the former trainer at both Granite City High School North and Granite City High School South, showed where the problem was. The trainer also gave Rose a strange prescription.

"He told me to start eating bananas because I was lacking potassium. On the average, I ate one banana a day; although, sometimes I'd lay off for two days and Running day . . .

then eat two or three the next day. That's what made me break the record, because if I'd had cramps that sixth time, I would have stopped. It would have been awful.

Rose started his record run at 9 a.m. at the Granite City High School South track. He ran to Plum Hill, Ill. along with three cars, one in front, one in back and third driving alongside of Rose every two miles to hand him a squirt bottle filled with water.

"If I had the strength to reach out and grab it, I would. If I didn't, I'd say, 'Not let it go.' I knew that when I had my limit of 10 miles and was hurting, that I had to keep right on going. When the pain hits you is when you want to be able to break that barrier."

"After you get in good physical shape, the rest is just mental," he said. "If you can say 'This don't hurt' and keep on going, you can make it. But if you say, 'Oh man, I'm hurting, I gotta quit, you're gonna hang it up.'"

Rose said he had to have both physical and mental preparations before attempting to break the record. Physically, he drank a quart of water before he ran his workouts. This excessive amount of water was to train Rose's kidneys to handle that much water without having to urinate.

"If you stop for more than 10 seconds, the world record doesn't count," said Rose. "To train mentally for the record run, Rose had to put up with the pressure of running daily, each time trying to go faster and faster."

"You run every day and say, 'This don't hurt,' and then you pick up the pace and say, 'I know this don't hurt.' But the whole time, it's killing you."

At Plum Hill, Rose turned around and headed back toward Granite City. Even during the run, he drank two beers from the squirt bottle to get some extra protein. Salt was also added to the regular amount of Gatorade in order to keep Rose from dehydrating.

Rose said that between the 80 and 85 mile mark, he was ready to quit four or five times. Each time he saw Jimmy Hall, a runner on the same high school track team with Rose, sitting on the hood of the car ahead of him, yelling his heart out.

"I'll never forget it," said Rose. "He was calling me a chicken and all sorts of names. He said, 'I've spent all this time with you, helping you run your lavers and do your workouts and you're going to quit on me, you chicken-livered.'"

"It made me mad, but I kept on chugging."

Although Rose Although he broke the 100 mile record that day, Rose he was also trying to break the record for running 131 miles without stopping. But he collapsed at mile 106 just outside East St. Louis and was taken to a hospital.

Rose stayed in the hospital a couple days to regain his strength. The first visit he received was from his father. "My dad was crying because he thought I was dying," said Rose. "I told him not to worry, I was only exhausted."

Chiefs win

GRANITE CITY — The Prather Junior High wrestling team overcame an early lead by Collinsville here Tuesday and recorded a 53-20 victory to run its record to 2-0.

Prather lost the first two bouts on pins, but won 10 of the next 11 to win easily.
At 75 pounds, Prather's Matt Miller was pinned at 1:30 of his bout. The Chief's 82-pounder, Greg Peck, suffered a similar fate at 1:13 of his.

But beginning with 90-pounder Jason Wagner, Prather went unbeaten in the last 11 bouts. Wagner pinned his Collinsville opponent at 1:37 of their bout.
98-pounder Dan Cochran won a pin at 1:04, 105-pounder Steve Fries won 10-3, Mark
Paul Ballo won at 1:12 pounds with a pin at 1:07.

Dan Witsell won his 119 pound match with a pin at 1:37. Savin Clements won by a pin at 5:26 of his 126 pound bout. Ken Nonn at 135 pounds had a 10-10 draw with his opponent. At 145 pounds, Carl Barton pinned his opponent 32 seconds into the bout.

At 155 pounds, Mike
Bowman won by a pin at 23 seconds. Eric Gunderson won his 170 pound bout with a pin at 2:23. Heavyweight Paul Ballo pinned his foe at the 3:52 mark.

CAT-FIGHT. Southern Illinois University-
Edwardsville Cougar Neal Peoples (45) is guarded by McKendree College Bearcat Kip Pabst last night in action in Lebanon. McKendree won the game in an 84-82 thriller. (STUE MOORE) before the Evansville game," he said. "You know, shaky. And tonight,

I had butterflies when we were lining up for the opening tip. But as soon as we started playing, I was OK."

"People ask me if I feel I have something to prove since I'm just a freshman. But I think I've already proven something. I must have, or I wouldn't be here."

Russ, who missed all of last season with a broken ankle, is one of the best shooters on the team.
According to Gottfried, he should see considerable playing time at guard.
Stubblefield could be the team's starting point guard this season. "He's made great progress with his ball handling," said Gottfried.

Moore has shown flashes of brilliance, according to Gottfried.
"He had 27 points last year against Bradley," he said. "Even though he had a bad slump in the second half of last season, he still finished with a 48 percent mark from the floor."

But the "main man" in the lineup will be Abrams, once he returns.
A three-year starter, he is one of the most talented players ever to play at SIU. That list includes the likes of current professionals Joe C.

Morriweather of the Utah Jazz and Mike Glenn of the New Jersey Nets in addition to the best-known former Saluki
Knick, Cleveland
Cavalier and N.B.A. all-star Walt Frazier.

SIU's 26 game schedule is highlighted by two tournaments, the Fiesta Bowl Classic in Tempe, Ariz. this weekend and the Alabama-Birmingham Classic after Christmas. An added attraction will be a home game against perennial Big Eight Conference power Kansas State Dec.
15. The game will mark the return to Carbondale of former SIU coach Jack Hartman.

Edwardsville has height

By KEVIN ALLEN
of the Press-Record
EDWARDSVILLE — Bud
Vallino likes to think of himself and his Edwardsville High School basketball team as flexible. They'll take what you give them.

Wanna challenge their strength? Then you face senior guard Dan Allaria and junior forward Keith

McDonald.
That's all right with Vallino. That's what teams have done so far this year, and Allaria has averaged 20 points a game while

McDonald has been scoring around 16 per contest.
Forget them, you say.
Concentrate on the others.
According to Vallino, that's OK too.

"Right now Allaria and McDonald have basically been carrying us. But it all depends on what you want to give us."

"We've got four or five guys capable of scoring. Our strength is in our shooting ability."

Take, for instance, The Tigers' Tom Hanson. He's a 6-3 senior who averaged 12 points a game for Edwardsville last year.

Hanson has been injured this year and has seen limited action, so when he gets back the Tigers should be that much stronger.

"He could be a horse,"
Vallino said.

The Tigers will also use Greg Shashasak at point guard. Vallino said he Shashasak saw considerable action last season, and expects more from him this year.

Then there is 6-2
Flaughner. He was an all-metro football player.
Vallino said he will be a definite asset off the bench.

"The depth of our bench is also a definite asset,"
Vallino said.

That's how Vallino likes it.
The Tigers traditionally have used their bench generously, shuffling fresh players in the line up throughout the game.

The Tigers present good height to opponents also.
Four of Edwardsville's starters are over six-feet.
McDonald is the tallest at 6-6.

Three of those four are seniors, although only McDonald and Allaria were regulars last year.

As for the Gateway East Conference, Vallino thinks Edwardsville should be as much of a contender as any other team.

He sees the championship mainly contested between the Tigers, Granite City
South, and Cahokia.
But he also thinks Althoff and Granite City North have improved teams, ready to present additional competition in the conference.

"Who knows," Vallino said. "It could end in a four-way tie. A win on the road will be tough to come by.
Everyone has chance at knocking everyone else off."

Mrs. Ludi Kittel succumbs

Mrs. Ludi M. (Burgener) Kittel, 83, formerly of 1267 Klein St., Venice, was pronounced dead upon arrival at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Oliver C. Anderson Hospital, Maryville.

She was a resident of the Madison County Shelter Care Nursing Home, Edwardsville. She was with her daughter enroute to a restaurant for lunch when she was stricken and taken to the hospital. It is believed she died of an apparent heart attack.

LAYER OF DIRT coats the car of Frank Cantlon, 4121 Breckenridge Lane, even after driving from his home to downtown Granite City. He contends the dirt comes from Breckenridge Lane, which was torn up for sewer construction and then bladed smooth, so cars can use it, but the sewer committee has not authorized money for the contractor to put down oil or any substance to keep the dust from covering cars, shrubbery, houses or people. Cantlon is threatening to file suit against the county, alleging the constant dust is injuring his health. He notes the road has been kept smooth, so cars can pass quickly, raising more dust. "If they are not going to put something on it, I would rather they would just leave the holes, so cars would have to go slow," he concluded.

No contract—Callis

By GARY SCHNEIDER
of the Press-Record

The "balloon" of hope for low sewage treatment rates the Madison County special sewer committee set loose last week was deflated during Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting when City Attorney Lance Callis said the county sewer committee, surprised the county and the city in 1972 no longer apply.

During a joint meeting of the county's sewer committee and city officials one week ago, Harry Hartman, attorney for the county sewer committee, surprised city officials when he said he expects the city to honor a 1972 agreement between the county and the city which sets treatment rates which would translate to about $10 quarterly per household on the new county sewers, including the costs of maintaining the new sewers and billing customers.

Alderman Sam Whitmer, chairman of the city council's sanitation committee, admitted he was "surprised" that the document existed, since he had not seen it before. The ordinance set treatment fees for 42 years from the date of passage, according to Hartman.

Callis said Tuesday night that the ordinance contains a phrase nullifying if the county sewers were not in operation within three years of the contract, which means the agreement expired in 1975, according to the city attorney.

The council requested Callis to write a letter to the sewer committee, notifying them the city will not honor the 1972 ordinance and intend to continue negotiating on sewage treatment rates.

In addition to seeking treatment fees in neighborhood of the $13 quarterly charges, residents, the council wants to extend to the new county users a $10 per quarter surcharge which charges all sewer users outside of the city limit.

According to Whitmer, the city does not want to treat the sewage from the county at a "break-even" cost, since the city built a secondary sewage treatment plant large enough to treat the county sewer output in addition to the city's sewage, and city residents have borne the additional costs of the larger plant since it was completed.

The people of Granite City are entitled to some compensation for the bonds and interest and maintenance costs they have paid for years so a large enough treatment facility would be available when the county sewers were completed, Whitmer indicated.

Civil trial—by Jury—may require $50 fee

By JUDY TAPLIN

So you've always thought you had the right to a trial by jury in the United States of America?

You still do, but beginning Jan. 1, it may cost defendants in civil suits $50 if they want a jury trial in Madison County.

The $50 charge comes from a newly passed state law. Madison County Chief Circuit Judge Horace Calvo says he expects to find out later this week at a meeting in Chicago whether or not the fee will be mandatory for all counties.

If it isn't mandatory, Madison County will have to decide whether or not to assess the $50 charge.

Under the new law, if neither the defendant nor the plaintiff pays the $50 for a jury, the case will be tried by the court without a jury. The new law doesn't apply to criminal cases.

The Bill of Rights in the Illinois Constitution says: "The right of trial by jury as heretofore enjoyed shall remain inviolate."

The federal Bill of Rights says: "In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed $20, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved."

How does the new law square with these statements?

Calvo, asked about this, said that at first glance it would appear to be depriving citizens of a constitutional right.

However, Calvo says he believes the legislators felt the charge for a jury in a civil case was justified as long as it was small enough not to be prohibitive.

Cook County has been charging $50 for jury trials in civil suits in the past, and this legislation raises the cost there to $75.

Judge Calvo noted that the small claims court in civil suits in the past, and this legislation raises the cost there to $75.

He says the new state law could prompt a test case, although he has not heard of any such action at this point.

Calvo says he believes the new law, if applied here, would reduce the number of jury trials in Madison County, and he believes a reduction statewide was an intent of the legislation.

Also, Calvo says, some small cases use a request for a jury simply as a delaying tactic. The $50 charge might discourage this tactic, he said.

The $50 fees would go into Madison County's general fund, and would help offset jury costs. These costs were close to $200,000 in the past year, Calvo noted.

Circuit Clerk Willard Portell says there were between 1,250 and 1,300 cases last year which had requests for juries, and for which the new law would have been applicable had it been in effect then.

Based on these figures, it would appear that the general fund could be enriched by about $65,000 a year from the $50 charge for a jury.

Portell says the Illinois Court Clerks Association neither introduced nor sponsored the bill for the $50 charge; the association took no stand on the issue.

BOUND FOR CITY HALL, this 17-foot evergreen was donated by Sylvia Orsey (right), 1528 Clark Ave., to be used in the center of the city hall of Granite City. The tree had to be removed due to its proximity to a water line and the home's driveway and since it was about to reach an overhead power line, M. H. Wolfe Construction Co. donated the truck to haul the tree to city hall. Sanitation workers, under the direction of Jim Stack, are shown cutting the tree down and loading it onto the truck. It was erected in city hall yesterday.

Armed man is arrested

Michael L. Jesse, 34, of 4045 Kathy Drive, Apt. 1, was arrested at his ex-wife's home at 2028 Manly Ave., at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday and was charged with unlawful use of a weapon and battery.

It is alleged Jesse called Granite City police, notified them he was going to that address and said there may be trouble.

He arrived before police cars and one of his children admitted him to the house. He allegedly held a loaded 38 caliber handgun and a night stick and accused his former father-in-law, Walter Finke, 63, of 2555 Benton St., of trespassing in the home.

Finke alleged Jesse said he was making a citizen's arrest and police were on the way.

Finke explained he was babysitting for his grandchildren and an argument ensued, during which Finke was struck with a fist, suffering a cut to his chin, officers were told. Police arrived and arrested Jesse. He was released at 9:10 p.m. Tuesday on $200 cash bond.

Poor wrapping offers post office problems

If the post office clerk tells you that your Christmas gift package won't go, it's because we want to be sure it will arrive at its destination safely, Postmaster Jack D. Wilson said today.

"Some customers get upset when their packages are so poorly wrapped that we can't accept them for mailing, but we do it for their own protection," Postmaster Wilkins said. "Of course, our clerks point out the deficiencies and explain how they can be corrected."

Postmaster Wilkins said the problem of poor packaging is particularly troublesome during the Christmas mailing season when the mail volume rises dramatically.

To avoid delays and assure safe arrival of Christmas gift packages, Postmaster Wilkins offered these suggestions:

Wrap each item individually with enough padding to prevent damage from shock and vibration. Separate wrapped items from outer package surfaces with padding or foamed plastic. Heavy items should be braced with fiberboard pads to prevent shifting and damage.

Fiberboard containers are recommended for all items weighing more than ten pounds. Paperboard containers are acceptable for up to ten pounds.

Rather than string or cord, use either Kraft paper tape, reinforced Kraft paper tape, or pressure sensitive filament tape. The latter is preferable for prevention of accidental opening.

Postmaster Wilkins said to put the name and address of the person to whom the package is being mailed and your own return address inside as well as outside the parcel. The outside address should be legible from 30 inches away. Always check to see that you have the proper address and ZIP Code.

He also reminded mailers that the Postal Service no longer accepts letter mail that is less than 3½" high or 5" long. In addition, First-Class mail that weighs one ounce or less and is more than 6½" high or 11½" long requires seven cents postage in addition to a 15-cent stamp. However, there is no oversize surcharge on First-Class mail weighing between one and two ounces. Postage is still 28 cents.

Lutherans for Life meeting

Concordia Lutheran Church Parish Hall will be the scene Saturday night at 7 o'clock of a "Lutherans for Life" gathering. Lutherans from 13 Lutheran congregations in the central part of the Metro-East area will be in attendance to hear Dr. Jean Garton, president of the national Lutherans for Life movement.

Granite City's Mayor Paul Schuler and State Representative Everett Steele will be at the speaker's table, the Rev. Arvin Twietmeyer, host pastor, noted.

Lutherans for Life is a one-year-old pan-Lutheran organization for the sharing of dialogue by Lutherans. Dr. Garton expressed the philosophy of Lutherans for Life: "Believing that the Church's witness is most authentic when it speaks and acts on behalf of those who are victims of exploitation and are defenseless against the powers of this world, Lutherans for Life strives to develop a society of caring mutuality for a wide range of human needs. However, the crisis at this point in time requires that we have a special concern for the unborn child." To her presentation she has given the title, "Abortion Doublespeak."

Dr. Garton has appeared before congressional subcommittees and has been featured on an NBC-TV special, has authored "Who Broke the Baby," has taught from kindergarten to college, and was an appointee of the New Jersey state senate and is a member of the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation task force researching programs for the family.

In 1978 she was named one of the "Ten Most Influential Women in the United States." Her home is in Pennsauken, N.J., and is the wife of a Lutheran clergyman. She has four children.

The gathering Saturday night is the product of Concordia's Board for Social Ministry chaired by Don Rowold. Board member Marty Hoffman arranged for the appearance of Dr. Garton.

Southern Illinois District (LCMS) President Alvin Kollmann will open the meeting while Pastor David Fielding of Hope Lutheran Church, will pronounce the closing prayer and benediction. The support of the circuit council will be expressed by the circuit's counselor, Pastor Gilbert Busarow. Host Pastor Arvin Twietmeyer will preside.

CONCERT TOMORROW WILL AID COALITION
Singer-songwriter Holly Near and pianist-composer J. T. Thomas will give a benefit concert Friday at Powell Symphony Hall in St. Louis for the Coalition for the Environment.

The concert is part of a 26-city tour to benefit anti-nuclear coalitions and is promoted locally by Women for Women of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The tour includes appearances in Berkeley, New York City, New Orleans, Kansas City and Washington.

Louise Hamlin of Women for Women said funds will be used to promote public information and education program on environmental issues affecting the St. Louis region. In the past, the coalition was active in her successful campaign to stop construction of the Meramec Dam, and recently intervened to oppose Union Electric's request for an $81 million rate increase.

Interest of the people —state's attorney's job

Representing the interest of the people, from the filing of charges to the completion of a trial, is the function of the Madison County State's Attorney's office, according to Stephen C. Mudge, assistant state's attorney. Mudge spoke to a meeting of Explorers Post 104 last week.

"In the felony area alone, one part time and four full time attorneys handled about 600 cases in 1978 and 800 in 1979," Mudge said. The state's attorney's office handles a multitude of other duties such as advising county officeholders on legal matters and advising members of the county board, the post was told.

In the area of felonies, Mudge said that plea negotiations are made by the "tremendous number of cases and lack of staff and judges, added to the time and cost factors required by trials."

Mudge said, "In November, 150 cases were called for trial. In simple cases, it takes a day and a half to select a jury and in a homicide case it can take two, three or more days to select the jury.

"There is simply not enough time for all the trials," he emphasized.

"We have a member of our staff available 24 hours a day to the police of the county. He is known as the warrant officer."

"Police sometimes misinterpret our role when they call in and are told the case won't hold up in court."

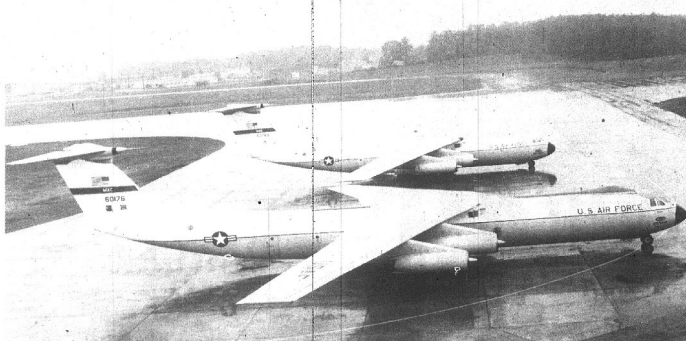

"Our job is to make certain that when charges are filed we can be reasonably sure we can get a conviction. This is really a check and control of the quality of police work," he said.

Mudge has been with the Madison County state's attorney's office since August 1977. He worked for about a year in the juvenile division, working with juvenile delinquents and child abuse cases.

Now working in the felony division, he has handled almost every type of criminal case, such as theft, burglary, aggravated battery, rape, murder, home invasion and drug cases, he related.

It was noted that most of the lawyers in the state's attorney's office are generally young and just out of law school. This is due to the relatively low pay scale, the speaker said, adding, "But it's a great way for a young attorney to get experience."

"There is real job satisfaction when you know you have helped protect society and that some of the habitual criminals have been taken off the streets," Mudge said.

OLD AND NEW. In the foreground is the Military Airlift Command stretched C-141B Starlifter aircraft. Lockheed Georgia Company is stretching the entire C-141A (background) fleet at its Marietta, Ga., facility. The Military Airlift Command is headquartered at Scott Air Force Base, near Belleville. The first C-141B was delivered Tuesday.

System shown here today will train air crews to offset anti-aircraft fire

Known as the TRTG ('Tactical Radar Threat Generator'), the system is expected to add significantly to the Army's ability to train air crews to survive and win in combat while under heavy anti-aircraft fire.

In ceremonies conducted at the Granite City Army Installation, senior military officials, representatives of Emerson Electric Co. and visitors witnessed a demonstration of the system's ability to provide representation of a low-level electronic battlefield — a battlefield that U.S. forces will be required to effectively function in, should the nation become involved in a future military conflict.

The TRTG looks like a civilian truck-bed camper shell with a three-foot radar mounted on the top. Both familiarity and simplicity stop there.

The U.S. Army TRTG is a self-contained, state-of-the-art electronic system. Its emissions are designed to represent the electronic

The system contains a modified Emerson military aircraft radar, turret, radome, television display, camera, turret drive, gimbal, electronic system monitoring device, controls and an integration of electronic equipment.

All subsystems are modularly designed and enclosed within a shelter that can be carried on a variety of military and civilian vehicles.

Using the TRTG, the Army will now be able to train aircrews to effectively operate against various potentially hostile anti-aircraft weapons.

The crews will have actively experienced how enemy fire control systems will affect their own aircraft's equipment.

Through personal peacetime experience, they will know how to overcome the threat and how to avoid being shot down, officers said.

Initially, the TRTG was independently designed and manufactured by the Electronics and Space Division of Emerson Electric Co. in St. Louis.

15% school plan toppled but ruling will be appealed

The Illinois State Board of Education last week voted to appeal a Cook County Circuit Court ruling against the board's desegregation rules involving Chicago Heights School District 170. The case has statewide ramifications.

Judge Arthur Dunne in October ruled against the board's desegregation requirement that specifies racial enrollments in each Illinois' school should be within 15 percentage points of the entire racial enrollment of a district. Dunne indicated that he felt the board's standard was too restrictive.

Under the Rules Establishing Requirements and Procedures for the Elimination of Racial Segregation in Schools, State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin said, "The board has incorporated numerous provisions in its desegregation rules allowing for flexibility in approving desegregation plans."

According to board members, Judge Dunne's ruling is a restrictive interpretation of the board's desegregation rules—a verdict inconsistent with established board practice and policy.

Board members said they have consistently allowed for variations from the 15 percent standard when educational, physical or economic constraints have affected the desegregation process of a school district. Judge Dunne did rule in the court case that the state board has the authority to promulgate rules requiring the elimination of de facto segregation.

Nameoki School room mothers Cindy O'Neill and Lynn McClain, dressed as Santa's elves, have decorated the door to "Santa's Secret Shop."

The shop is a service by the Mother's Club to give pupils of Nameoki School an opportunity to do their Christmas shopping on their own.

Bea Stevens and Shirley Ethridge, co-chairmen, have selected a large variety of low cost yet nice items for students to choose from. Volunteer mothers help each shopper.

Matthew 25:35 "For I was hungry, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink."

Jesus taught us to do unto others as we would have others do unto us. To love our neighbor as ourselves. We understand that helping folks in need is commanded by our Lord.

As for us, I can see the real problem is Who do we help? Personally, I want to be sure my help is going to the greatest need.

The answer of course, is the United Way. Through this great organization we are lifted above religious stumbling blocks, personal prejudices, doubt, and mistrust. You give your gift and responsible community leaders distribute to the greatest area of need. You have peace of mind. You have obeyed your Lord. You are now a part of that great number dedicated to "do unto others."

Let me encourage you to give early, generously, and confidently.

MHS to present Dickens' 'Carol'

Madison High School students are in rehearsal for the first play to be presented for sometime at the school. Dickens' famous "A Christmas Carol" is scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 19, in the school auditorium.

Admission at the door will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

The play is under the direction of Ron Crader, of the English department and has a cast of 18 MHS students.

Crader began the project to stimulate an interest in drama and other performing arts in the school.

Dan Koestel, principal at MHS said, "I am very pleased with the reception and participation of our students with the play. They are working hard on it. Ron (Crader) deserves a lot of credit with this project. I feel this is just the beginning for many more fine things here in our program at the school."

Venice students Christmas drive

Under the leadership of the Venice High School Student Council a contest is being held to see which room can collect the most canned goods to help the Salvation Army with Christmas baskets.

Prizes will be awarded at three levels: kindergarten through first grade, fourth grade through sixth grade and the junior high school.

The Venice High School students and teachers are not in the contest, but are bringing canned goods to the school office.

Tina Ponce and Al Schaefer are the faculty advisers and John Rush is the principal.

11-day holiday at SIUE

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will be closed from Saturday, Dec. 22, to Wednesday, Jan. 2.

Acting President Earl Lazerson announced the decision Monday "in an effort to conserve energy and reduce operating costs." He said temperatures in all campus buildings, except where operations are considered essential, will be maintained at 55 degrees during the 11-day period.

Lazerson explained that because of the Christmas and New Year's holidays and three "floating" holidays designated by the university previously, there are only two normal working days — Thursday and Friday, Dec. 27 and 28 — in the 11-day period.

Employees whose activities are considered essential will be required to work on these two days. In return, they will receive one day off at another time, Lazerson said.

Other employees will be allowed to take one of the two work days off with pay. The other day will be charged against vacation time, or the employees may choose not to be paid for the day.

Employees who do not have accrued vacation time may charge the off-day to future vacation time, with the permission of their supervisors.

The university will reopen Wednesday morning, Jan. 2, and winter quarter classes will begin Jan. 2 at 4:30 p.m. Final examinations for the fall quarter are scheduled Dec. 10-15.

Oldest Christian nation, Armenia, perpetuating its culture and customs at Granite City church

St. Gregory the Illuminator Armenian Apostolic Church, 1732 Maple St., celebrated its twenty-fifth year Sunday with a special divine liturgy said by Bishop Mesrob Ashjian, prelate of the Armenian Apostolic Church of America. During the liturgy, John Manoogian, back to camera, top left photo, has the order of acolyte confirmed on him by Bishop Ashjian. Later, Manoogian and Robert Parsagian Jr. were both made subdeacons by the bishop.

Building materials control instruction

The Southern Illinois Builders Association, in cooperation with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will offer a course in the control of construction materials, beginning Jan. 14.

The 12-week course will be taught on Mondays from 7 until 9:30 p.m. in Room 1224 of the Science and Technology Building on the SIUE campus.

Registration is $100. Instructor will be Luke M. Snell, associate professor of science and technology. He has over 12 years of research, teaching and consulting experience in materials and construction engineering.

In addition to SIUE engineering personnel, guest lecturers during the 12 weeks will include representatives from the construction and engineering industry, including Marquette Cement in Nashville, Master Builders in St. Louis, Asphalt Institute in Springfield, American Plywood Association, Southern Forest Products Association, Johns-Manville, and Adhesive Engineers in Chicago and Boston.

Aimed at updating and expanding the knowledge of people in engineering, construction and related industries, the course will emphasize the properties and uses of several major construction materials.

These construction materials include aggregates, cement, admixtures for concrete, concrete properties, special concretes and masonry, structural steel and asphalt. Participants will also discuss roof systems, construction inspection and structural repair procedures. Special emphasis will be placed on trouble-shooting and solving construction problems.

The course was developed particularly for field and office personnel involved with specifying or using construction procedures and materials.

MEETING CANCELED

Due to a lack of business on the agenda, the Granite City Plan Commission will not hold a meeting in December. Bill Dallas Jr., Plan Commission secretary, announced this week. The date of the January meeting is to be announced.

Profitable Ill. State Fair called unlikely

Major changes in attendance, revenues and usage would be necessary to make the Illinois State Fair self-supporting, Illinois Comptroller Roland W. Burris said during the weekend.

A special study of the State Fair Agency in a monthly fiscal report from the comptroller shows that annual revenues from the fair have increased only $375,000 since 1972, while attendance since 1969 has been cut almost in half.

Comptroller Burris' analysis of the fiscal facts of the fair does not argue for or against the concept of a self-supporting fair, but underscores some of the problems in achieving a pay-itself-way exhibition.

His regular analysis of the state's fiscal health shows that while tax revenues are still rising, there are also signs that a recessionary cloud is near.

Here are some of the findings of the State Fair study.

—The Wisconsin State Fair—self-supporting for 37 years—is similar to the Illinois exhibition in many ways, but has far different policies and is located in a more populous area.

—While the Wisconsin fair offers no free use of its grounds or facilities, the Illinois fairgrounds still provides free use of buildings and facilities to a number of state agencies, and only this year began charging many non-governmental groups for use of facilities.

—It is noted that, under accounting concepts, few state agencies are self-supporting. While drastic concept changes might achieve a profit-producing fair, it appears unlikely in the near future unless far more fairgoers are attracted to the Illinois exhibition. On other topics, the state continues to maintain a strong fiscal front, with revenues for the first four months of fiscal year 1980 running $160 million higher than expenditures.

At the same time, surplus money in the state's five special funds and the suspension of transfers to debt service funds now total $100 million. This could be shifted to the general funds by order of the governor at any time, Burris said.

Income tax revenues are up $132 million or 20.3 percent over a year ago, and sales taxes have climbed 15.6 percent.

The tight-money policy is taking effect in Illinois, and should begin to slow the rate of inflation Burris said. The key concern is that oil prices will "go into overdrive and out of control." The statewide average cost of a gallon of gasoline has risen 35 cents a gallon so far this year, from 70 cents to $1.05.

State road fund balances are still skimpy, though expenditures are up somewhat over FY 1979. Motor fuel tax revenues are down.

Day-to-day operating costs of state government are up 10 percent over a year ago, paced by increases in printing, telecommunications, data processing, commodities, travel and contractual services, the comptroller said.

DOG IS STOLEN

A two-year-old white male Spitz dog with a gold collar was stolen from the back yard at the home of Barbara McCormick, 2261 Delmar Ave., between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday. The dog, which is valued at $150, had been on a chain in the yard, the owner said.

Salaries are top university priority as yearly budget squeeze continues Presentation on the Southern Illinois University system fiscal year 1980-81 budget requests before the Illinois Board of Higher Education on Tuesday, by Dr. Kenneth A. Shaw, chancellor.

Thank you for allowing me this time to present comments describing and supporting the Southern Illinois University system's fiscal year 1981 operating and capital budget requests. Overall, I believe our requests are modest and realistic. The following comments will separate our overall request into several areas and highlight certain items within these areas.

Salary Increase Funds. An area of continuing concern for SIU is the level of faculty and staff salaries. The intent of our Board of Trustees in approving a request for an 11 percent salary increase for FY 1981 was to offset the impact of inflation and provide funding for partial catch-up of faculty and staff salary disparities.

If current inflationary rates continue, the requested increase may not even be sufficient to cover the rising cost of living.

The need for salary increase funds to cover disparities is a statewide higher education problem which was explained and documented by the pension in Illinois Institutions of Higher Education study last month.

Adequate and appropriate salary for faculty and staff is, again, our number one priority item in the FY 81 budget request.

Inflationary Increases. Our request for an eight percent increase for support items other than library materials and utilities is based in part on the current annual inflation rate and the expectation that it will not increase at any greater rate in FY 81.

The recommendation of 15 percent for library materials is identical to the percentage increase we received this year. The purchasing experiences of our universities indicate that continued increase in this percentage increase in funding is justifiable.

Our recommendation of 22 percent for utility purchases is made from estimates derived by our universities. Predictions of utility price changes are made difficult because of the uncertainty of national energy policies and the impact of such policies on energy supplies and rate increases.

This board has recognized the budgetary significance of this problem, both of our universities and the state. In 1976, highly successful energy conservation programs.

Overall, the consumption of energy has markedly decreased, overall costs have more than doubled. For example, SIUE instituted a conservation program in 1971. From 1971 through 1979, consumption of natural gas by SIUE was dropped by 43 percent even though that institution has increased its usable space by 29 percent.

The cost for natural gas, however, has nearly doubled during that period—from $275,000 to $548,000.

In its FY 80 allocation of the governor's budget, you provided for increases averaging 14 percent for housing institutions and 17.5 percent for those using natural gas. Even with these seemingly generous increases, we have been forced to reallocate funds to pay for our utility needs.

Reallocation. SIU like other university systems has had to reallocate money internally in order to adjust to inflation and changing program needs.

We feel this is appropriate and necessary so as to insure that our dollars follow our stated priorities.

New and Expanded Program Requests. Now let me turn to new and expanded program requests. First, with respect to the health professions, our requests for the Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, and Nursing are generally in line with the thrust of the assessment you received earlier today.

For Medicine, we seek money for operation and maintenance of hospital leased space—this is space which we rent and have no control over what it costs us—so that operating funds which have been used for this purpose can be allocated back to the academic program.

We agree that the class size should be increased, and the support we request will help us toward that end. We also ask for funds so that we can expand the Family Practice Satellite Residency Program, which relates concerns stated in the Assessment. Parenthetically, I should add that we are proud that one-third of our graduates are going into family practice, which is the highest percentage of any medical school in the U.S.

For the Dental School, we need funds to replace federal dollars in order to continue the highly successful program that teaches dental students how in their practice to manage the full range of auxiliary treatment. In order to expand to a class size of 64, we also need the facility planning funds contained in our capital request. We cannot increase class size because our present make-shift clinic does not have the space to permit expansion beyond 53 students per class.

For Nursing, we are asking for support to expand enrollment and to continue the baccalaureate completion program in Carbondale, both in keeping with the Assessment recommendations.

A pressing problem for SIUE during the next fiscal year is a lack of adequate housing on or near the campus and inadequate transportation to and from the campus from nearby communities.

The university has been placed in the untenable situation of experiencing an enrollment decline this fall and at the same time having over 500 students on the waiting list for housing—students who want to attend SIUE but cannot.

The university is then penalized through the budgetary process because of its lost enrollment.

Internally, SIUE will be devoting considerable effort to the solution of these problems and will also be seeking the support and assistance of the IBHE and its staff on these important matters.

For SIUC, I want to stress especially our unstinting commitment to instruction and research in the field of energy, particularly coal.

The Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center is well established. Instructional programs in mining engineering and mining technology are under way.

This year, we were designated by the Department of Interior as the Mining and Mineral Resources Research Institute for the State of Illinois, and we have made a small request for matching funds to support the activity of this federally supported institute.

We will be working with

Mr. Furman and his staff to attain approval of our proposal for a Ph.D. in geology, which we view as an essential part of our energy research needs for the future.

Capital Request. Our capital request, set forth in priority order, represents our needs for the immediate future.

Our Board of Trustees gave the highest priority to the completion of partially funded projects. The most significant of these projects are the Multi-Purpose Building at SIUE and the Women's Gym Remodeling Project at SIUC.

SIUE is the only four-year public institution in this state without a facility such as the Multi-Purpose Building. SIUE students, through student fees, have already contributed $1 million to this important project.

The Women's Gym at SIUC has been in use unremodeled since 1926 and in its current state falls far short of meeting the needs of the programs utilizing that facility.

These two projects are not our only capital priorities, but clearly they are our highest.

Conclusion. Again, our overall budget request for fiscal year 1981 is modest and attainable.

It is realistic and recognizes and provides for priority funding needs of our system, with the highest priority being placed on faculty and staff salaries.

Our request provides for the effects of inflation and also provides funding for various special needs of our universities, such as new and expanded programs, equipment and repair, support costs, and leased hospital space.

Our request for capital funding, like our request for operations, reflects the genuine needs of the SIU system.

McKinley School sale is Dec. 14

The vacant McKinley School at Niedringhaus Avenue and Iowa Street will be put up for sale a second time Friday, Dec. 14, at 10 a.m. at a public auction.

The minimum bid price is $200,000. The Granite City Board of Education has decided. Oct. 19, the school was put on public auction with a minimum bid price of $200,000, but there were no bidders.

While the school district is not announcing two interested parties might be, the $200,000 figure had been discussed with "various people," and seems to be a legitimate price for the building," according to Superintendent of Schools B. J. Davis.

He confirmed that St. Elizabeth Medical Center and at least one local industry have expressed interest in purchasing the building.

Medical center sources have indicated that the additional parking the school lot could provide is of interest and the school building could be the site of a new school, but it will be up to the board of directors to determine if a bid will be made Dec. 14.

The Regional Board of School Trustees will conduct the auction. Ten percent of the bid price must be posted the day of the sale and the remainder will be due on delivery of the deed.

The board of education reserves the right to reject any bid, even if it is in excess of $200,000.

HOUSE BURGLARY

A portable television set and women's rings, valued at $1,380, were taken from the home of Michael Miller, 2000 Elm St., during the weekend. Entry was gained by forcing open a bedroom window at the rear of the house and exit apparently was through the front door as it was found open when the owner returned home.

Rev. Twietmeyer honored on 25 years at Concordia

Concordia Lutheran Church, Sunday, celebrated the silver anniversary of the installation of its pastor, the Rev. Arvin Twietmeyer, on the first Sunday of Advent. In 1954 Pastor Gerhard K. Schmidt, then pastor of Hope Congregation, preached the installation sermon. Now pastor of St. Andrew's in University City, he returned to Concordia's pulpit Sunday morning to preach the anniversary sermon, "Our Common Praise."

Under the direction of Ruth Rankin the choir sang "Come Christians, Join to Sing" and "I am the Bread of Life." Worship began with the congregation's presenting a silver pocket watch to the pastor by chairman, H. A. Amelung. Pastor Schmidt concluded his sermon by leading the congregation in singing the "Te Deum Laudamus." Miss Denise Ranken was at the organ.

During the evening the Ladies Aid, the Laymen's League and the Young Adults surprised the pastor with a potluck fellowship in his honor in the parish hall. Seven neighboring pastors, known as the "Singing Preachers," under the direction of Pastor Gilbert Busarow of Collinsville, entertained the assembly with a program of Gospel songs.

Others pastors present included the Rev. Samuel Boda, pastor of St. John Lutheran Church and the Rev. David J. Egbert, minister at Hope Lutheran Church. Duane Rankin, an elder at Concordia, served as master of ceremonies and presented the honoree at a table centered with a special designed anniversary cake, many greeting cards and personal gifts.

One of the highlights of the event was a message from Mark Twietmeyer, a member of Edison Park Lutheran Church, Chicago, to his father on the anniversary observance.

Rev. Twietmeyer noted his family numbered five 25 years ago and this week they included 14.

The evening concluded with the reading of congratulatory messages from several vicars who had served the congregation under Pastor Twietmeyer. "I will long remember the joyful spirit of appreciation of God's grace, which was so evident among the members of Concordia and many past members and friends who made up this happy assembly."

Audience to sing Messiah

Music lovers and all who love to sing are being invited to be part of the area's second Handel's Messiah "sing-in." Presented by the National Choral Council, it will be held at Grace United Methodist Church, 6199 Waterman Blvd., St. Louis, on Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 7:30 p.m.

Lifting their batons to conduct the unique community chorus will be 21 local and national choral masters: S. William Aitken, Ronald Arnatt, Kenneth Billups, Kenneth Bowen, Sister Carole Brouillette, John B. Egbert, Martin Johnson, Orland Johnson, Donald Jones, Martin Josman, Larry Luby, William Menzies, Emily Pearce, Thomas Pearce, David Porkola, Joel Revzen, Janet Spencer, Larry Thomas, Leonard Van Camp of SIUE, Edward A. Wallace and James Wilson.

Soprano Sarah Traverser and tenor Jeral Becker will sing Messiah arias to provide a professional model and points of rest for the audience-chorus. Kenneth Bowen is the sing-in's organist and Martin Josman is the music director. Each conductor will lead one chorus, making musical suggestions and briefly rehearsing the audience chorus before conducting. Suggestions for soprano, alto, tenor and bass seating will be made through the use of poster cards on stage before the event. But there will be no attempt to keep friends or groups from sitting together. Piano scores can be purchased at the door.

The Messiah Sing-In is a community singing event created and developed by the National Choral Council. It was first staged at Lincoln Center's Avery Fisher Hall in 1968. The first St. Louis sing-in was held at Powell Hall in 1977.

This year, the National Choral Council received a grant from the American Can Company Foundation to organize the sing-in in six U.S. cities—St. Louis, Philadelphia, Boston, Minneapolis, Rochester, N.Y., and Neenah, Wis.

Williams runs for U.S. Senate

Collinsville attorney Dakin Williams has thrown his hat into the political ring again, this time running for the U.S. Senate.

Williams will oppose Alan Dixon, and possibly others, for the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat being vacated by U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III. A colorful campaigner, Williams has conducted a fund-raising dinner at McDonald's Restaurant following it with the serving of tequila sunrises to the press, has played violent (poorly) for the Chicago press corps, and once invoked the ghost of the late Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

He has run unsuccessfully for U.S. Senate in 1970, 1972, 1974 and 1976, being ruled off the ballot for petition deficiencies in 1970 and 1976.

Venice students attend convention

Student Council and Student Advisory Council members from Venice High School attended the convention of the Kaskaskia District of Student Councils at SIUE.

Theme of the one-day convention was "Today's Challenge: Tomorrow's Success." Keynote speaker was Brad Whitehead, a 1978 graduate from Monticello and a sophomore at Harvard.

Mrs. Gratena Ponce and Albert Schaefer, co-sponsors of the Venice group, reported that the students participated in group discussions centered around the theme, and later elected officers for the Kaskaskia District of Student Councils for 1980-81.

VHS students attending were Mellany Marchbanks, president; Kenneth Wise, treasurer; and Archie Gardner, Johnnie Guest, Lisa Harman, Lynnette Crawford, Koral Marbanks, Elaine Parker and Townda Salmond.

Senior Student Council members Lisa Foley, Cheryl Baker and Sabrina White said the next projects for the VHS Student Council will be collecting for the Salvation Army Christmas food baskets and a Venice High Christmas party.

Parents meet on Title program

The first meeting of the Title I elementary and Junior high parents of Granite City was held at 1 p.m. Thursday, at the Preschool building at 2425 Logan Ave. Mrs. Ruth D. Lehr, director of Title I, introduced Ted Vrenick, principal of Wilson School, Ed Gowan, principal of Lake School, and the following teacher: Peggy Dillard, JoAnn Gunning, Tom Haevner, Helen Hall, JoAnn Hall, Betty Harmon, Marilyn Parker, Ron Simpson, and Jo Wagoner.

HIT WITH PIPE Mrs. Della Coleman, 30, of 3406 Kirkpatrick Homes, suffered cuts to her right ear and throat and abrasions to her right arm and hand during a disturbance early this week and was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. She told authorities someone struck her on the head with a pipe. She was treated and declined to be admitted.

Arrest boys in thefts from cars

Two 13-year-old Granite City boys who were arrested early this week have admitted stealing from four parked cars in the vicinity of East 24th and Edwards streets.

One boy allegedly told police he thought he had been involved in 10 car burglaries in the evening, before they were arrested. One boy had a garage door opener in a pocket when stopped by police and he named the second boy involved, who was arrested.

The boys showed police an antenna, microphone, playing cards and other items they had taken from cars and hidden in a field behind the Salvation Army. It was reported.

'Circuit breaker' aids aged, disabled

Q. What is this "circuit breaker"?
 A. Circuit breaker is the term used by the state's Senior Citizens and Disabled Persons Property Tax Relief Act.

Q. Is it a tax rebate program which provides partial rebates to qualified citizens for property taxes they paid?
 A. It is called circuit breaker because it is designed to protect the household income of Illinois senior citizens and disabled persons from tax "overload," similarly to the way an electrical circuit-breaker protects a household wiring from current overload.

Q. What can I get under this tax rebate program?
 A. There are two grants available. A single application form is used to apply for both. One grant is for property taxes paid. The second grant is called the additional grant. This grant ranges from $50 to $100, depending on one's income. Last year, more than 389,000 persons received additional grants averaging $80 each.

Q. Is it possible for people to qualify for both tax relief grants?
 A. Yes. And thousands of people have.

Q. Anyone who qualifies for property tax relief qualifies automatically for additional tax relief.
 That's because the age or disability, residency, and annual household income requirements of the two programs are nearly identical.

Q. Do I have to own my own home to qualify for a property tax rebate?
 A. No. You can rent your housing or you can reside in a mobile home or nursing home. If you rent, 30 percent of your annual rent is considered property tax.

Q. I'm 65 and my income is under $10,000 but I live in public housing. I don't pay property taxes on my residence. Am I eligible for a tax rebate?
 A. You wouldn't qualify for property tax relief, but you could qualify for the additional tax grant program.

Q. A person doesn't need to have paid property taxes or have lived in a residence subject to property taxes in order to qualify for an additional grant.
 Q. How does receiving funds from the Department of Public Aid affect my eligibility for receiving the Circuit Breaker tax refund?

A. You may receive food stamps or a health card (green card) without losing your eligibility to receive circuit breaker tax rebate providing you are otherwise eligible. However, if you accept a check from the Department of Public Aid, no matter what the amount, you are only eligible for the additional grant.
Q. Is there a deadline for filing these rebates?
 A. Yes. Claims for rebates of 1979 taxes must be filed before Dec. 31, 1979.

Q. When can I expect to receive my 1979 circuit breaker application form?
 A. Any person who has applied for a circuit breaker tax refund will automatically receive a 1979 application form. If for any reason you have not received your application form by Jan. 15, 1980, please call our offices.

14 million auto frames produced here since '54

"We were shoulder to shoulder, putting in rivets, crimping them and shoving the frames on. We had a make-shift assembly line, under a tarp, with plastic hanging down to keep out the wind. We were under that tent from September to spring," veteran employees recall.

The decision to build an automotive plant at Granite City was announced in July 1953.

The 90-acre site across the Mississippi River from St. Louis was selected because of its central geographical location, a nearby source of steel, and excellent rail and water shipment facilities.

Construction of the 180,000-square-foot factory was to be completed in March 1954 for production of not less than 40 percent of the annual passenger frame requirements of the Chevrolet Division of General Motors.

Based on the success of the automatic frame line in Milwaukee, the Granite City plant was to be fully automated.

However, it became apparent that production demands would force utilization of the automatic line before the proper amount of time was spent in final setup and tryout.

Two buildings were hastily constructed for hand line production of frames. On Sept. 13, the first hand line began production on the first shift; on Sept. 21, on the second shift; and on Oct. 4, on the third shift.

On Oct. 20, the second line began. Now, two lines were running first and second shift and one line on third shift.

"In our first three and a half months of operation, we built 238,000 frames. We set a record for that first model year — 861,398 frames.

"When you look back, that record is most impressive — to do that volume of production with people inexperienced in the mechanical press area. We worked all day, all night.

"We were running two lines per shift, three shifts a day, seven days a week. You could work as many hours as you wanted."

In 1956, the automatic frame line was in operation. Production from it, combined with the two hand lines and unperfected working hours, contributed to a record number of frames. The 1955 model frame design was used in the 1955, 1956 and 1957 Chevrolets.

Also during this time, a building was added to handle large customer requirements for convertible frames.

"Everybody here who's celebrating 25 years with A. O. Smith worked on that automatic line at one time or another. We had people all over it."

"Our first production was in 1956. We made a ladder type frame on it then."

"Then in 1958 we had our first model change; GMC changed to an hourglass or cruciform frame. It wouldn't fit into the pits on the automatic frame line."

To accommodate the additional steel requirements for the 1958 model frame, the steel storage building was lengthened by 100 feet.

Five presses, ranging in size from 300 to 600 tons, also were added.

"Since the radical design change has been made for the 1958 model, we believe that the manual line rather than the automatic line should be retooled for the new product."

In November 1961, Chevrolet informed A. O. Smith that it would purchase the frame for the 1963 Corvette, one of the most popular sports cars on the market.

The frame would be made at Granite City; this was good news because it meant additional jobs for Granite City employees at the start of the 1963 model year.

Sample frames were shipped in June 1962; production and shipping began in July of that year.

In 1963, an addition was built for storage of parts adjacent to the Corvette frame assembly line. This addition provided for the staging of Corvette frame components close to the assembly area.

"The Corvette frame was made here originally. We shipped more than 135,000 Corvette frames in six years. During the strike in 1968, Corvette production was moved to Milwaukee. It's still in Milwaukee. But A. O. Smith is the only company ever to make Corvette frames."

The next major plant expansion occurred in 1964 for the 1965 model frames.

Again, there was a major design change in the frame. This new frame concept, an outrigger or extended side rail frame, resulted in a number of radical changes to the operation.

Another addition was made to the steel storage building to house coil steel for the new cut-to-length line installed in tandem with an existing eight-wheel shot blast cleaning machine.

A new four-wheel shot blast cleaning machine was added to the line for improved cleaning of new, wider coils.

The first of several expansions of the North building was made to house 12 new presses needed for parts fabrication of the 1965 model frame.

These presses ranged in size from 250 to 1,200-ton capacities. Another major change was installation of two-part conveyor systems which still run between the press shop fabrication and subassembly areas.

In the summer and fall of 1966, an addition was made to the South office area to house purchasing, production scheduling and manufacturing departments.

"We've always had good safety habits. We've had safety glasses since we opened. And a good safety record."

"We've had good people, good methods and good foremen. And it shows in these records."

"We picked work-experienced people originally. It was a recession year. There were lots of layoffs in the area."

"Some of those first hires came from as far away as Mt. Vernon. That's 100 miles away. We still have one carload left of those coming from Mt. Vernon."

In November 1967, the employees of the Granite City plant completed four million safe work hours without a disabling injury.

In August 1968, the employees celebrated completion of five million work hours without a disabling injury. In 1969, the group marked six million safe hours.

The record ran from May 23, 1968, to June 20, 1970, or for 3,942,973 man-hours without a disabling injury.

During this time, Granite City employees also earned A. O. Smith Corporation's President's Award for excellence in accident prevention two years in a row, in 1968 and 1969.

In January 1966, when the plant earned its first record of 1,476,275 man-hours worked without a disabling injury, it marked the first time an A. O. Smith production division had reached the million man-hours mark without such an injury.

At midnight on Dec. 31, 1967, employees of Local 575 of the Boilermakers' Union, AFL-CIO, at Granite City went on strike.

The strike lasted 12 and one-half weeks. Production resumed April 1, 1968, after the board of directors at a special meeting voted to continue operation of the Granite City plant.

By this time, Granite City employed 1,500 persons and facilities covered 390,000 square feet.

In 1970, the 24,000-square-foot West building addition provided space to install the first of two sub and main assembly lines for the 1971 model frame.

By maintaining one line on stream, the 1970 model frame continued to run with a minimum of time lost as setup was made for the 1971 model.

Locker room facilities also were added, as were two additional coil blanking lines with a 72-inch, 800-ton Vernon and an 18-inch 200-ton Warco.

McKays — were added to the fabrication operations for the 1971 model.

The steel storage crane was upgraded from 15 to 25-ton capacity to handle larger tonnage coils now received from the mill.

Voss equipment to degoil and recoil the heavier coils was added to the steel cleaning line just ahead of and behind the shot blast cleaning equipment.

It consisted of a front section and a rear section assembly joined by center channels.

This concept was particularly attractive since parts and fixtures were generally standardized, which led to simplification in future changeovers.

On Wednesday, Sept. 13, 1972, the Granite City plant produced its 10 millionth frame.

The frame was painted today to celebrate 10 million frames. A huge cake was cut and consumed during the three-day celebration commemorating the production achievement.

"The cutting of this cake today to celebrate 10 million frames is our way of expressing our appreciation to the best group of employees that I know anywhere."

"We have had many good things going for us — an excellent customer, an automotive management in Milwaukee, and we are supported in every way — but most importantly, this production could not have been accomplished without the exceptionally fine employees that we have here."

The workers were told. In 1973, two 800-ton Vernon forming presses were added to form the rear inner rail members of the 1974 model frame.

Beginning with the 1974 model year, an anti-rust coating was applied to all GM frames.

This coating, which had been successfully tested at the Granite City plant the previous year, resulted in energy savings of approximately 25 percent, as it required reduction of the paint shop oven temperature.

"It's sort of funny. We're almost back to as light a frame as we started with."

"Frames had gotten wider, longer and heavier. Now we're back to lighter frames."

A major model changeover was required for the new resized 1977 standard car frame for General Motors.

A great deal of work in retooling, equipment installation and assembly fixture modification was required and had to be scheduled while production of the 1976 was still in its early stages.

The "F" parts handling conveyor was modified, the monorail height was raised, and presses were relocated.

A prefabricated storage building was also added at the end of the line for storage of all fabricated parts.

Both were to eliminate rusty parts.

With employment continuing to increase, a third floor was added to the West locker room in the summer of 1977.

"During the 1977 model year, we shipped more frames than ever before."

"We were behind on our daily shipping schedules most of the year and really had to scramble to keep from shoving a month to our Mexican affiliate."

"We've made GMC pickup truck trailing arms, reinforcement braces for Vega and torque arms for Chevrolet's Monza."

For the 1978 model year, 353,099 frames were produced.

By the close of this anniversary year, 697,000 frames for 1979 and 1980 models should come off the lines at Granite City.

"Over 25 years, that totals over 14 million frames."

"That's a lot of frames and a lot of memories of good times and bad times, of accomplishments, of changes, and of friends made through the years."

With sales of over $800 million in 1978, the Smith

"Most significant changes have been technical improvements — first from the riveted frame to 'stick' welding, then to CO2 semi-automatic welding and advanced hydraulic equipment."

"Now, the electron beam welder. The best method of achieving more productivity is better, more advanced equipment."

By the end of 1977, Granite City facilities, with a storeroom addition, totaled over 470,000 square feet.

An 800-ton coil feed line was relocated from Milwaukee, bringing the total coil blanking lines to five.

In late 1978, an expensive piece of machinery, a Bendix 4-Axis Portage Lay-out Machine, was placed in service to assure accuracy in maintaining ever-tightening tolerance limits.

Weld booths and a conference room were set up for a welding training facility.

"We started with Chevy frames. Now we're making 'B' frames that are used in the full size Chevrolets, Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs."

"Through the years, we've made bumper reinforcement for Ford — for the F-Bird, Mark V and Continental. We've made frames for use overseas."

"And we supply about 650 frame sets a month to our Mexican affiliate."

"We've made GMC pickup truck trailing arms, reinforcement braces for Vega and torque arms for Chevrolet's Monza."

For the 1978 model year, 353,099 frames were produced.

By the close of this anniversary year, 697,000 frames for 1979 and 1980 models should come off the lines at Granite City.

"Over 25 years, that totals over 14 million frames."

"That's a lot of frames and a lot of memories of good times and bad times, of accomplishments, of changes, and of friends made through the years."

With sales of over $800 million in 1978, the Smith company ranks among the top 500 manufacturing companies in the United States.

It employs 13,500 persons in 20 manufacturing plants in the United States, Canada, Ireland, England, Mexico and Japan.

Founded as a small machine shop in 1874, A. O. Smith today is the world's largest independent manufacturer of automobile and truck frames; the nation's largest producer of fiber glass reinforced plastic pipe; and the major manufacturer of automated animal feed processing and storage systems.

It also is among the leaders in production of water heating equipment and of electric motors used in water systems, air conditioning and refrigeration. Four major lines of business — products for original equipment manufacturers, consumer products, agricultural products and diversified products — make up the company.

OEM products, which accounted for 72 percent of sales in 1978, include auto and truck frames, auto components, railroad equipment, and hermetic jet pump and other electric motors.

The Automotive Division over the years has supplied in excess of 93 million passenger car frames, over 33 million truck frames and more than 63 million sets of wheel suspension control arms.

It currently supplies about 39 percent of all full separate frames used in passenger cars and approximately 33 percent of all truck frames manufactured in the U.S. and Canada.

Blast furnace, basic oxygen, hot mill production records set Granite City Steel President James V. Slack has announced more plant production records, headed by the first major unit in the steel production chain, the blast furnaces.

For the first time in GC Steel history, the two blast furnaces maintained a month-long average of more than 5,000 tons of iron a day.

Slack said, "Our blast furnaces really went out in style during November—before the repair work on 'A' Furnace and the relining of 'B'—with an average daily tonnage that was just a dream a couple of years ago."

The next major unit in line is the Basic Oxygen Furnace Shop, and on Nov. 29 the department ended a record lining campaign on the No. 1 vessel.

When it was taken down for replacement, the BOF brick lining had 1,792 heats of steel on it, surpassing by far the old record of 1,625 heats set earlier this year.

The steel plant's 80-inch Hot Strip Mill on Nov. 30 surpassed the previous record for total tons of coils rolled in one year—2,225,502.

More prime shipment tonnage was recorded in November than in any previous November in Granite City Steel history, and the plant also has passed its all-time total shipments record for a year.

Slack congratulated all employees who made the achievements possible. He added, "This kind of performance will be needed even more during 1980. Improved productivity will be needed in all departments to better serve our customers, as they operate from reduced steel inventories."

ACCIDENT VICTIM

James L. Miles, 2824 W. 20th St., was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center in an unconscious state and treated for a cut to the lower lip, following an auto accident during the weekend. He was X-rayed and released.

The Miles vehicle was westbound on 20th street when another car swerved toward it and Miles, in trying to avoid a collision, struck two parked autos.

Arrest juvenile in armed robbery

A 15-year-old Fourteenth Street boy has been arrested in connection with an armed robbery on the rear parking lot of Bellmore Village Shopping Center at 4:15 p.m. Monday.

Florence Clanton of the 3100 block of Jill Avenue told police she was getting into her car behind Glik's Department Store when a young man wearing a stocking cap held a knife to her throat and ordered her to move over to the car seat, saying, "Don't scream or I'll kill you."

The victim said she held out her purse to him and told him to take it, if he needed money. When he grabbed the purse, she screamed and he ran toward Carlson Avenue. Two men in passing vehicles heard the scream and followed the boy to the 3200 block of Aubrey, where he ran in between two houses.

Police arrived and searched the area, finding the boy hiding under a bush with the purse and its contents in his possession. A large knife also was found in his trousers pocket, police alleged.

Illinois State Police Trooper Jon C. Lybarger, public information officer, Maryville District, is reminding motorists to call 345-1330 for Illinois highway condition information.

"Highway condition information is available to the public from special weather phones installed in state police district headquarters throughout Illinois. The service is offered from Nov. 1 through April 15 of each year," Lybarger said.

"The prerecorded report is updated daily at 5 a.m., 11 a.m., 4 p.m. and 9 p.m.—or more frequently if conditions change."

"These weather phones were installed to provide motorists with accurate information about highway conditions, and at the same time, keep regular police telephones open for emergency calls."

"The road information number for this area is 345-1330," he stressed.

COMPLETES SEMINAR ON GERIATRICS CARE

Bruce C. Janssen, administrator at Colonial Haven Nursing Home, Granite City, has completed the Illinois Department of Public Health's continuing education requirement through attendance at a two-day seminar for administrators, conducted by the Center for Continuing Education of George Williams College, Downers Grove.

The IDPH-approved seminar took place in Belleville. Del Jay Kinney, center director, served as coordinator of the seminar.

Evaluation at North

Gilbert V. Walmsley, principal, has announced that Granite City High School North will begin another self-evaluation study during the 1980-81 school year.

Norman S. Owca, Business Department head, has been appointed to coordinate and prepare all areas and departments for this evaluation.

In the meantime, "All department heads, consultants and administrators are now preparing a five-year progress report," Walmsley said.

"This report will include improvements made, recommendations to be carried out in the near future or with long-term planning, and recommendations that were judged to be invalid from the 1975 North Central Association and State Department of Education evaluation."

The departments submitting reports are art, business, driver education, English, media services, foreign language, guidance, health, home economics, industrial arts.

"Also, mathematics, music, physical education, science, social studies, special education, and technical and industrial education."

"The committees representing philosophy and objectives, school and community, curriculum, student activities, school facilities, and school staff and administration will also submit reports."

Two hurt on Missouri Ave.

Clifford Anderson, 18, of 2003 Missouri Ave., was charged with improper use of turn signals after his southbound auto allegedly turned right from the center of the roadway into a driveway at 2433 Missouri Ave., in front of the southbound auto of John Novak, Columbia, Ill.

Novak and witnesses contended Anderson's auto had its left turn signal operating and it appeared the auto was making a left turn before it turned right suddenly in front of Novak's auto.

Anderson and a passenger in his car, Peggy Badgett, 16, of 2433 Missouri Ave., went to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment after the accident.

She said she hit her head on the inside of the car. She was treated for scratches to her nose and right hand. X-rays were taken and she was released.

Anderson said he bumped his head and had scratches to both hands and back pain. He was admitted to the medical center for observation.
